British Study Drastic Steps As Economy Enters Crisis

Cripps to Address Commons this Week; Attlee Lays Strikes To Communists

(From Press Dispatches)

London, July 3.—The British Labor government was reported today to be considering various urgent and drastic moves to meet the dollar and gold crisis descending on Britain and the whole sterling area.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer and economic boss of the nation, will reveal to the House of Commons Wednesday just how serious the crisis is. He may also announce some moves for meeting it.

Snyder in Europe

That something was in the wind was indicated by:

1. Arrival of United States Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder in Europe for a series of economic talks.

2. Presence in London of Sir Oliver Franks, British Ambassador to Washington, for "crisis talks" preliminary to discussions with Snyder.

3. An extraordinary conference of all the Commonwealth finance ministers here the middle of the month to see what can be done about the British crisis.

4. A charge by Prime Minister Attlee that Communists are trying to disrupt Britain's recovery. In a speech at Manchester today, he lashed out at "unofficial strikes" including the 8000-man dock strike, as Communist inspired.

5. Four members of Parliament charged today that Communist agents fomented the London dock strike in a plot to wreck Britain's economy.

Imports May Be Cut

Meanwhile, various measures for meeting the crisis were reported under consideration by the Labor government. These included proposals for subsidizing British exports, cutting British imports of American tobacco, gasoline and perhaps even cotton, nonferrous metals and some foods.

Sir Stafford's statement, which will show the extent to which the gold and dollar reserves of Britain and the sterling area have dwindled in the last three months, is expected to shock the country.

Attlee spoke before an estimated 12,000 at a Manchester Labor meeting.

He said he was sure the vast majority of those who took part in the present series of unofficial strikes were loyal but said they did not seem to understand "how narrowly poised is the economy of this country."

The only people who would gain, he said, were those "who would like to see our great social democratic experiment fail."

"They care nothing for this coun-

Secretary Reported Seeking Outlets for U. S. Investment

Paris, July 3 (AP).—Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder arrived here today to begin a series of European conferences which may lead to the investment of more American private capital abroad.

Snyder was accompanied by his assistant, Wiliam M. Martin. They will spend about four days with French Finance Minister Maurice Petsche and Barry Bingham, head of the Economic Cooperation Administration mission to France.

The tour will take in London, Rome, Brussels, Stockholm, Cairo and other capitals. A well-informed source said Snyder's main purpose is to visit ECA mission chiefs to gather information on European currencies.

Reports from Washington, the source said, make European ministers of finance "anxious" to hold these discussions with Snyder.

The reports are that Snyder is making an effort to find outlets for the investment of private American capital that will eventually take the place of the Marshall Plan.

An American Embassy spokesman said Snyder was gathering information that would help him "formulate United States financial policy in Europe."

British Paper Reports U. S. Investment Plan

London, July 3 (U.P.).—The People, a Labor-minded Sunday newspaper, said today that President Truman's experts are preparing a plan for "gigantic American investments in Europe in place of the present Marshall aid."

All Europe except Belgium and Switzerland is heading for financial disaster, it said.

National Symphony Inaugurates Concert Season Before 20,000

By Paul Hume

The sun sank into the Virginia hills, the towers of Georgetown softened in the gathering dusk—and Howard Mitchell opened the National Symphony Orchestra summer season last night with Gladys Swarthout as guest soloist.

The Potomac River seemed its most beautiful last night as more than 20,000 thronged to the barge anchored in the shadow of the Lincoln Memorial. The weather was perfect—the music sounded clear and well proportioned over the excellent amplifying system. After minor adjustments in the balance of microphones and a bit more rehearsing of players, the finest series of summer concerts yet offered Washington will be in top shape.

Mitchell opened with the Star-Spangled Banner and Beethoven's somber Egmont Overture. Howard Hanson's second symphony followed. It is a happy choice for these concerts. Subtitled "romantic" it is not too long, and full of lush melodies.

Miss Swarthout opened with Dido's Lament from Purcell's Dido and Aeneas. The huge audience drawn by her name and art, included Isobel Baillie, great British soprano, who has so often sung in performances of this opera.

Three at Harvard Observatory Find Unknown Comet

Cambridge, Mass., July 3 (U.P.).—Discovery of a new comet by three members of the Harvard College Observatory staff was announced today by Dr. Harlow Shapley, observatory director.

Shapley said the comet was found on a photographic plate exposed through a telescope last night.

Shapley credited the discovery to Dr. Bart J. Bok, associate observatory director; graduate student Vainu Bappu of Hyderabad, India, and senior Gordon Newkirk of West Orange, N. J.

The discovery will be named the Bappu-Bok-Newkirk comet.

Navy Employe's Rooms Entered; Nothing Missing

The three-room apartment of a civilian employe of the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations was thoroughly ransacked early yesterday as the occupant slept, but nothing was taken.

Someone entered the apartment, at 1836 18th st. nw., through a window 15 feet from the ground between 2 a. m. and 8:45, according to Earl Russell Linch, 32, and his wife. The window screen had been cut and was found pinned to the outside of the apartment with a penknife.

Jewelry, flat silver, cash totaling $20, briefcases and clothes were untouched, although the unknown house breakers searched purses, bureau drawers, closets and suitcases.

Rocking Chair Sitter Denied Parking Space

Laguna Beach, Calif., July 3 (U.P.).—The city judge here has ruled that a rocking-chair sitter can't park in the street even if he drops his nickel in a meter.

City Judge C. C. (Gabby) Cravath, former big league ball player, made the decision after a shopkeeper tried to hold a parking space for a customer by plunking in his nickel and setting his rocker down in the street.

Cowboy Singers Clear Dishes

Millionaires Tend Reno Bar, Turn Pay Over to Strikers

Reno, July 3 (AP).—Five millionaires tended bar tonight at the swank Riverside Hotel—and turned their pay over to the striking AFL bartenders whose places they were taking.

They are Norman Biltz, New York socialite who became a professional broker here; Chet Emmons, banker; Adler Larson, builder; Ben Edwards, real estate broker, and Marsh Johnson, auto dealer.

Reno's legalized gambling places were doing a thriving business with the largest Independence Day crowd in years—unaffected by the culinary and bartenders strike.

Cowboy singers cleared the dishes and proprietors mixed drinks in other eating and drinking establishments.

The strike—followed by an employers' lockout order—came as thousands of visitors jammed the city for the Fourth of July holidays.

Emergency eating facilities were set up in Reno parks to feed the throngs returning—hot, thirsty and hungry—from the annual July 4 rodeo.

No emergency provisions were made for serving liquor but bar owners or other employes stepped into the breach—mixing drinks by guess. That usually was heavy on the scotch or bourbon.

The union demanded wage increases ranging from $1 to $4.50 a day. Employers offered bartenders $1 a day and other trades 50 cents. Barkeeps making $8 to $12 a day, depending on bar size, wanted $12.50-$13.50. Cooks, waiters and busboys asked $1 a day more than $10-$12 for cooks, $5-$6 for waiters and $7-$8 for busboys.

Czech Reds Ask Peasants To End Riots

Premier Visits Slovakia, Urges 'Peace and Calm' In Church Strife

Prague, July 3 (AP).—Czechoslovak Communist leaders, apparently shocked by bloody resistance from angry Catholic peasants, today appealed for "peace and calm" in the nation's church-state war.

After a week's silence, government officials and the controlled press confirmed and gave details of fighting between Slovak Catholics and Communist police who attempted to seize village priests.

A cabinet minister confirmed reports that peasant "Minute Men," armed with clubs and scythes, were organized to "guard their priests day and night" in strongly Catholic Slovakia. Informed diplomatic and church sources said two policemen were beaten fatally in the eastern province last week.

The seriousness with which the Communist government viewed the resistance was underlined by Premier Antonin Zapotocky's trip to Bratislava, capital of Slovakia.

Opening a three-day religious holiday, he appealed for "peace and calm." He urged fostering of good will and unity between Czechs and Slovaks.

Prison terms promptly handed down against 10 peasants on charges of insurrection also reflected the gravity with which the government viewed the sporadic uprisings.

Three women were among the 10 sentenced to terms ranging up to 10 years in the Slovakian town of Levoca, according to press reports.

Minister of Education Zdenek Nejedly—whose department has suppressed the Catholic Church press and sponsors a rival, Communist-controlled Catholic Action organization—reassured the nation in a radio address.

He said the government was willing to make concessions for a state-church agreement. The minister blamed the church hierarchy's resistance to state control on "bishops who have to obey the Vatican and Washington."

Bratislava strees were lined with armed troops and police for the Premier's visit.

Zapotocky's trip to Slovakia was interpreted as part of the campaign to strengthen the state-sponsored Catholic Action movement.

The Premier left no doubt, however, that the government intended to push ahead with its program of harnessing the country firmly to communism.

"Forward—not one step back," is the motto of the "Peoples' Democracy," he declared.

Prague church circles buzzed about the disappearance of prominent churchman, the Rev. Frantisek Fiala.

Formerly a priest at St. James Cathedral in Prague, he had emerged earlier in the church-state strife as one of the chief supporters of the government.

He failed to show up for a government-sponsored meeting at which he was apparently to be assigned leadership of the new Communist-backed separatist Catholic Action Society. When the government couldn't get Fr. Fiala to head this movement, it had to pick a layman.

Veteran Wins $14,820 On Radio Program

New York, July 3 (AP).—James P. Thomas, 30-year-old bank teller of Albuquerque, N. Mex., won $14,820 in prizes tonight on the ABC "Stop the Music" program.

Thomas, a war veteran with three children, correctly identified a mystery song as "Say Not Love Is a Dream."

Rush Opens On Tuesday To Adjourn

Congress to Convene In Crowded Quarters On Truman Program And Atlantic Treaty

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Congress on Tuesday, with its own full knowledge and consent, will convene in boxed-in, temporary quarters for a curious trial by ordeal.

The self-imposed legislative hot-foot could last anywhere from four to eight weeks.

But officially, the adjournment push will be on. After a few days in mass confinement, leaders concede privately Congress may insist on naming the date.

Meanwhile they expect to get more work done on the spotty Truman program than the lawmakers would conceivably have accomplished in the dawdling comparative comfort of their old spacious chambers.

Some Have Walked Out

If they've guessed wrong, President Truman may be in for another shock. Under pressure-cooking conditions, legislators have been known to walk out bag and baggage on their leaders, without a by-your-leave.

On the record, the Senate transfer from the old clubhouse to the stuffy former Supreme Court chamber and the House shift to the slightly more commodious Ways and Means Committee room was to make way for a long-postponed reconstruction job on the House and Senate chambers.

But doubting Thomases on the Republican side are now broadly hinting there was more to it than that. They say that if they wanted a good excuse for adjourning Congress without completing action on a legislative program the one spot they would pick for the Senate to get restless in is the closet-sized old Supreme Court room. They say Senators would have had more elbow room and fewer barked shins in the Senate Office Building's chummy caucus room.

Democratic leaders insist they don't want to be dogmatic about it. If Senators don't like the courtroom, after a trial run, they are perfectly willing to switch over to the caucus chamber.

Skeptical Republicans reply that there's only one other place Congress can go back to, now that construction crews have moved in, and that's home.

You will hear a lot more about it after the Senate has been in session a day. You see, there are no galleries in the chamber. Senators love to talk, but most of all they love to talk to an audience. The only representatives of the public in this case will be a thin line of some 25 reporters, behind a rear rail.

Chairs Closer Together

The 96 senatorial chairs are lined up closer together than seats in a neighborhood movie. Except for the leaders, who rate them, each Senator's beloved desk was left behind. Thus any oratorical tub-thumping is likely to collide with another lawmaker's skull.

Except for Vice President Barkley, who will be seated high on a dais, and can duck through a tiny door formerly used by Chief Justices (and a side entrance into the Democratic leader's office), all of the Senators, clerks, stenographers and reporters must queue up to shove through a common entrance.

Once inside, there may be a sharp if unequal contest between the air-cooling system and the humidity.

In this setting, Senate debate on the Atlantic pact will get under way Tuesday. If the change has the "expediting" effect leaders hope, Senators will run out of talk on that in a week.

'Biggest, Best' Fireworks

250,000 Expected to See July 4 Show at Monument

(Schedule of Today's Events, Page B-1 and B-3)

About 250,000 persons are expected to flock to the Washington Monument Grounds for this evening's Fourth of July program and fireworks display.

"Fair and warm, not too humid, with a high temperature of 92 or 93 degrees," was the Weather Bureau's word to program chairmen of varied events planned to celebrate the 173d Independence Day in the area today.

The quarter million stay-at-home Washingtonians and tourists expected by the District Fourth of July Celebration Committee will see one of the most spectacular displays of fireworks ever presented, the committee promised.

Whether President Truman will witness the show or otherwise celebrate the Glorious Fourth was not revealed by the White House. He is due to return at 5 p. m. today from a weekend yachting cruise.

Always the feature of the area's celebration of the holiday, the fireworks display will climax tonight's three-hour Monument Grounds program. It will include devices developed during the war and being used for the first time, committee officials announced.

C. Melvin Sharpe, chairman of the fireworks group of the Fourth of July Committee, said the "bigger-and-better-than-ever" show will last about an hour. It will begin at about 9:20 p. m.

The local program, which includes massing of colors, a scene from "The Common Glory" and a speech by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, will begin at 7:30 p. m. with a concert by the United States Navy and Marine Bands.

While the Monument Grounds program will be the major celebration of the Fourth in the area, citizens of the two nearby Maryland counties will have community programs featuring parades, children's games, prominent speakers, fireworks and other special events.

The traditional pyrotechnics display is always enjoyed by thousands of spectators from points other than the Monument Grounds, including the Virginia shore of the Potomac. Many prefer the Virginia vantage points, with the fireworks seen reflected in the water.

Aerial bursts will alternate with patriotic set pieces, including fire portraits of George Washington and President Truman and a flaming "Old Glory." A differ-

7 Guests Killed In Hotel Fire; 6 Are Injured

Search Continued For Other Victims In Aberdeen, Wash.

Aberdeen, Wash., July 3 (AP).—A pre-dawn "flash fire" whipped through a small residential hotel here today, killing seven guests and injuring six other persons.

The blaze, origin undetermined, flared just before 3 a. m. (P.D.T.) in the Lafayette Hotel at Market and H sts., while 30 to 35 guests were asleep in second floor rooms.

The fire, apparently starting in the lobby, raced through the structure in a matter of minutes.

Known dead are:

Mrs. Mary Kearns, 74; Mrs. Eliza Beshers; Mrs. Mary Abshire; Hugh Rogers, a paralytic; and Paul Myhr, the hotel proprietor; two other bodies were identified tentatively as Mr. and Mrs. Earl Christofferson.

People clung screaming at almost every window of the two-story masonry and frame building. Screams of trapped persons, many of them old-age pensioners living in the hotel, could be heard above the roar of flames and the crash of broken glass.

Police Patrolmen Don Shea and Pete Popovac started rescue work with a ladder 4 feet short of the bedroom windows. Shea and Popovac saved three or four elderly women who were sitting on ledges. One of the women, Mrs. Mary Roberts, 80, jumped several feet into Shea's arms, nearly tumbling both to the street below. She was hospitalized with head burns.

One guest, Anson Greeley, 64, lost his glasses, his money, most of his clothes and even his teeth in the scramble to escape his room.

"I tried to keep calm," Greeley said. "I jumped out of bed and stuffed my money in a pair of trousers. Then what did I do but put on a different pair when I left the room."

Mrs. Beshers gave her life for $48.77. With two companions, she was crawling across a hotel room to safety when she exclaimed, "Oh, my purse." She turned back. The others reached the street.

Others injured were Mrs. Helen Raidy, 49; Mrs. Louise Gagner, 66; Miss Mildred Dropulich, 37; T. N. Jovanovich, 28, and Pfc Jerry J. Ramey, Fort Lewis, Wash.

Rangoon, Burma, July 3 (AP).—The Burmese government today announced that more than 60 rebels were killed when they attacked a village a few miles south of Mandalay.

Accidents Kill 9 in Virginia, 11 in Maryland

District Is Lucky On First 2 Days of Holiday Weekend

Eleven persons in Maryland and nine in Virginia met death accidentally in the first two days of the holiday weekend, but no serious accidents were reported in the District.

In Maryland, five persons died by drowning, four in traffic crashes and two in a train wreck. The Virginia toll included seven in traffic accidents and two in an airplane crash.

Though traffic was reported by police as "farly heavy" in the District, with large crowds in parks, auto drivers and others managed to avoid injuring anyone seriously, through accidents.

A Frederick, Md., dairy farmer was killed and his companion injured yesterday when their light plane crashed in a field near Lovettsville, Va.

Virginia State police identified the dead man as Dorsey King, 40, manager of the Ideal Farms Dairy, of Frederick, owned by his father, J. Otis King. The victim was believed to be the pilot and owner of the plane, a two-place Aeronca.

Admitted to Loudoun County Hospital in serious condition with leg fractures, a dislocated shoulder and scalp lacerations was William F. Blessley, 33, also of Frederick, King's companion.

Dr. William P. Frazer, Loudoun County coroner, said King apparently died instantly of a broken neck. He also suffered a skull fracture.

Police quoted eyewitnesses as saying the plane crashed after the pilot tried unsuccessfully to level off after making a power dive.

As the small monoplane pulled out of the dive, the eyewitnesses said, its motor stalled and it plunged nose-first to the ground.

Ray Edward Brown, 33, Westminister, Md., died in a Baltimore hospital of a fractured skull suffered when his car left U. S. Highway 140 at Sandymount and smashed into a tree.

Alvin Brinsfield of Seaford, Del., was fatally injured when the car driven by his brother, Harold,

123 Degrees in Seville

Madrid, Spain, July 3 (U.P.).—A heat wave enveloped all of Spain today. The temperature in Seville reached 123.8 dgrees in the sun and 107.6 in the shade. The streets of Madrid were almost deserted and the capital looked like a ghost town.

Stock Cars Stall, Flyer Hits Them in Maryland

Hundreds of Pigs Set Loose in Woods; B. & O. 'Diplomat' Bound From St. Louis

Oakland, Md., July 3 (Spl.).—A crash of the Baltimore & Ohio eastbound passenger train, the Diplomat, with a stalled stock train early today killed two trainmen and injured at least 25 passengers.

The wreck also loosed hundreds of hogs from the stock train, sending them scurrying through a heavily wooded, fashionable resort area 5 miles east of this city.

The dead were identified as E. C. Fromhart, engineer, and W. L. Hartman, fireman, both of the Diplomat. Both were from Keyser, W. Va. They were killed instantly.

18 Treated at Scene

None of the injured appeared to be hurt seriously. Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, Garrett County medical examiner, said he treated 18 of the injured at the scene, all for cuts or bruises or both. Railway officials said about seven others also were treated for minor injuries. One man was reported to have suffered a broken nose, possibly the most severe of the injuries.

The crash occurred just after dawn near Deer Park, a summer resort on the main B. & O. line about 200 miles from Washington.

The passenger train, which was headed for Washington from St. Louis, plowed into the rear of the stock train which had been stalled by a broken air hose. State police said the passenger train was traveling about 45 miles an hour.

Hundreds of Pigs Loosed

The Diplomat's diesel engine and baggage car and five cars of the stock train filled with hogs left the rails.

The stock cars were said to have been loaded with 700 to 800 head of swine, and a number of them were either killed or injured and hundreds of the others loosed along the tracks.

Officials of the railroad in Baltimore said the stock train was pulling onto a siding to let the passenger train by when its air hose broke, automatically throwing on the emergency brakes. The rear end of the stock train was still on the main track when the Diplomat crashed into it.

Railroad officials said no one was in either the baggage car of the passenger train or the caboose of the stock train when the crash ocurred.

The time of the wreck was 6:56 a. m. (EST).

The Diplomat was scheduled to arrive in Washington at 12:10 p. m.

The wreck tied up heav holiday traffic along the line for hours.

323 Lose Lives In Accidents Over the Nation

By The Associated Press

At least 323 persons have died violently as a tragic by-product of the 1949 Fourth of July holiday.

Sizzling temperatures throughout most of the Nation helped the death toll soar. Motorists, seeking relief from the heat, jammed the highways, and sweltering millions took to beaches and streams.

Highway fatalities alone claimed 159 victims between 6 p. m. Friday and Sunday night. Drownings took 103 lives and 61 other persons perished in miscellaneous accidents.

Texas led the nation in deaths. It had 15 traffic victims, three persons drowned and two deaths from miscellaneous accidents.

Early Mexican Vote Favors Incumbents

Mexico City, July 3 (U.P.).—First unofficial election returns covering a fraction of the 191 electoral districts in the capital gave the government Party of Revolutionary Institutions (PRI) a decisive edge in its battle to elect a slate of 147 new deupties.

Voting booths began closing at 5 p. m. today after more than two million Mexicans cast their ballots. Observers said it was the largest popular vote in Mexican history.

Official election returns will not be made public until probably late Wednesday.

All of the chamber's 147 seats were at stake in today's voting, but no senators were being elected.

New Drug Cures 3 Children Of Typhoid Fever in Few Days

Three children afflicted with typhoid fever have been dramatically cured—two of them in three days—by use of the new drug chloromycetin, doctors at Children's Hospital revealed yesterday.

Typhoid fever—hitherto resistant to attempts at therapy with sulfa, streptomycin, penicillin and aureomycin—has been so successfully fought with the new drug in the past four months that it will be used regularly now at the hospital, doctors said.

The fever in untreated typhoid cases usually runs unabated for about three weeks, and during that time, the patient remains critically ill. In the three cases treated at Children's Hospital, fever was gone in two or three days.

While there was a relapse in one case within two weeks, a second course of treatment with the drug resulted in apparently permanent recovery.

Not only did the fever drop immediately in the Children's Hospital cases, but analysis also showed that the typhoid germs given off by the patient disappeared quickly after the drug was started.

Strangely, it is effective only against active cases of typhoid, and has very little effect on persons who are chronic carriers of the typhoid germ, doctors said.

Chloromycetin, which like streptomycin comes from a ground mold, was first used against typhoid last year by Dr. Joseph Smadel of the Army Medical Center and his associates in clinical experiments in Malaya.

It also has shown dramatic results against Rocky Mountain spotted fever, scrub typhus, bacillary urinary infections and undulant fever.

While at present the drug is expensive—it costs $1 a capsule, and 12 capsules are administered daily for about 14 days in the typhoid treatment—druggists are about to start producing it synthetically on a large scale and the price is expected to go down within a year.

The drug is being used at Children's Hospital against both typhoid and certain other infections under a grant from the National Institute of Health.

Blocking Plant Entrances Ruled Illegal Mass Picketing

By the United Press

The National Labor Relations Board ruled unanimously yesterday that unions are engaged in illegal "mass picketing" when they block entrances to a struck plant—even if it only takes a few pickets to do it.

It handed down the ruling in a case involving the CIO United Electrical Workers and the Cory Corp., Chicago.

The board emphasized that it is up to local authorities to regulate the exact number of persons "who may properly picket an establishment."

But it said the picket line is illegal so long as it has the effect of "physically obstructing" the plant's entrances, and of "restraining" or "coercing" employes who want to go to work.

The company accused the union of unfair labor practices after some 1500 to 2000 members engaged in a so-called "Taft-Hartley demonstration" at the plant on November 21, 1947.

The board ruled that the picket line actually was in support of a strike then in progress at the plant.

For the first time in its long series of decisions dealing with "mass picketing," the board set out in considerable detail its views on the subject.

It said Congress intended to prohibit conduct characterized by the popular term "mass picketing," although those particular words do not appear in the statute.

But the law does state that unions may not "restrain" or "coerce" employes, the board said, and therefore it is up to the NLRB only to determine whether such acts have taken place.

Plan to Stimulate Economy Unveiled

Hometown Level

Legion Opens Campaign For New Jobs

By The Associated Press

The American Legion yesterday launched a Nation-wide "grass roots" drive for new jobs, with the accent on community self-help.

National Commander Perry Brown said it is to be a home-town effort "to bring back to modern America the old pioneer spirit of self-reliance through self-help in solving local economic problems."

"Individuals, communities and States must learn again t ostand on their own feet if this country is to be saved from going social-Beaumont, Tex.

"We know we have a workable blueprint for community action" because it has already been tested successfully at Burnet, Texas, starting in 1947. Brown is from Beautmont, Texas.

The plan operates this way: (1) the 17,300 Legion posts, seeking full community cooperation.

The plan operates this way: 1. Committees are organized; (2) a community consumer survey is made, to find out from every family "the goods and services the people want"; and (3) one by one, little projects "that are bound to succeed" are tackled to provide jobs by supplying the desired services.

By the United Press

Three Democratic Senators yesterday unveiled the broad outlines of a 15 billion dollar program to stimulate the Nation's economy and halt growing unemployment.

Described by its sponsors as a plan to "quarantine" unemployment, it calls for Government action to boost private investment and a "shelf" of public works to be started in case of severe recession.

Sens. James E. Murray (D., Mont.), John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), and Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), discussed the measure, soon to be introduced in both houses of Congress, in a radio roundtable with Commentator Charles Parmer.

Not to Interfere

All three emphasized that the bill does not provide for Government operation or interference with private business, but aims to help business—particularly in "backward' industrial areas of the United States.

The bill will be called the Economic Expansion Act, its sponsors said.

Murray said it provides for establishment of a national economic cooperation board, composed of representatives of industry, agriculture, labor and consumers, to study economic conditions and make recommendations.

It would offer Government assistance to private investors to expand their capacity and production "where necessary." Investment would be encouraged through speed-up amortization and insurance against loss by State and regional organizations, he explained.

Help for Small Business

He said the measure also calls for scientific research and advice for small businessmen, and a Federal Trade Commission study of barriers to private investment and production.

Sparkman said the plan calls for a flexible, long-range public works program that could be expanded "tremendously" in time of unemployment and reduced when employment is relatively full.

He said one of the bill's strong points is its encouragement for industry to go into "underdeveloped areas" of the Nation and create new job opportunities.

Sparkman said the bill recommends a fund of 15 billion dollars as "working capital for all of these various objectives."

"Quarantine" Measure

Humphrey said the plan's aim is to "quarantine unemployment." He said he favors "putting up a public notice that here's a place where we need preventive economic medicine; we need to come in and cure the problem right where we see it at the moment."

He asserted that the Nation is in less danger from outside totalitarian aggression than from economic breakdown within, and said if the public is willing to spend billions to halt possible aggressors it "ought to at least be willing to make plans . . . to stop any kind of economic disaster within our own economy."

try," Attlee said. "They do not mind how the people suffer."

The four members of Parliament who charged that Communist agents fomented the London dock strike supplied counter-espionage agents with details of the alleged plot, amid reports the government may declare a state of emergency and order troops to take over the crippled docks. The strikes began two months ago in sympathy with a strike in Canada by the Canadian seamen's union.

Robert Mellish, son of a dockworker, and now labor MP for Rotherhithe, and three other MP's charged today:

"The information we have gathered reveals an organized attempt to disrupt the economy of our country. The trade union loyalty of the London docker is being exploited by the Communist element."

Mellish, said that six known Canadian Communist agitators were placed aboard the Canadian ship Beaverbrae "with the express purpose of causing trouble on this side of the Atlantic."

Mellish added that Canadian seamen who struck their ships as soon as they docked here in sympathy with the Canadian seamen's union strike, were housed only in homes of known Communist Party members. He said flying squads of known Communists have operated in the London docks to keep reluctant British dockers out on sympathy strike.

The strikes started at Avonmouth two months ago, and have affected in turn Newport, Leith, Bristol, Liverpool, and London. In each case, the strike was forbidden by union officials.

Amid the charges of Communist disruption, portions of the British press hinted at a coalition government as the only way out of the crisis. The Times of London said the problems were so great that they might "raise questions of social policy from which any, and especially a party government might shink."

Bill Provides 'Little RFC' For Veterans

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Plans for a "Little Man's RFC," designed especially to aid the economic welfare of veterans, were announced yesterday by Senator Maybank (D., S. C.).

The Maybank program is contained in a bill introduced by Senator Barkley (D., Ky.) as his last legislative act before he was inaugurated as Vice President.

Bipartisan sponsors of the measure include 75 Senators and 100 Representatives, Maybank announced.

"The fundamental purposes of the Act are to develop, under our free-enterprise system, our unused natural resources and our productive capacity, and to provide increased domestic opportunities, which particular emphasis on careers for veterans. The act will create a corporation vested with powers to provide long-term credit and technical advisory service to private business—individuals, firms or corporations; and to State and municipal, self-liquidating public projects, with the condition that preference in new opportunities created would be given to available qualified veterans," Maybank said.

"To reduce duplication, the corporation will be a small, policy-making body which will carry out the objectives of this Act to better utilize the existing facilities of Government and to simplify procedure for our veterans and small businessmen."

The corporation would borrow money through the Federal Treasury at the prevailing rate of low interest and lend it at a slightly higher rate.

"Experience indicates," Maybank said, "that the earnings of the corporation will not only cover all administrative costs and losses, but should return a considerable profit to the Treasury.

"The technical advisory services authorized in the Act will serve to minimize losses and at the same time protect the borrowers from business failures."

The Banking Committee chairman declared that authorities in world trade estimate that if only 2 per cent of the potential trade possible under the Maybank program is obtained, it will mean full employment for American workers and producers for two decades.

VA Will Hire 3000 to Speed Dividends

By the United Press

Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, jr., said last night he is setting up one of the world's biggest machine accounting systems to help get out $2,800,000,000 in insurance dividends to 16 million World War II veterans.

He said more than 1325 machines—key punches, sorters, collators, interpreters and posting units—will be installed in 200,000 square feet of floor space, occupying two whole buildings.

More than 3000 persons are being hired to handle the vast refund operation, Gray said. First checks will go out next January, inaugurating a flow that will reach the rate of 200,000 payments per day.

Almost every veteran will get some payment.

Gray outlined the project in a letter to House Veterans Committee Chairman John E. Rankin (D., Miss.), apparently in an effort to counteract charges by some Republicans that he dividends are being held up until 1950 to influence votes in next year's congressional elections.

In a joint statement last weekend 15 GOP House members made this charge, demanding the payments be made at once. They urged support of a bill requiring the Veterans Administration to make all payments by October.

Gray said no "reasonable person" could make such assertions if he had seen the size of the job the refunds entail. It simply is not humanly possible to make the refunds sooner, he said.

Revolt Against Tito Reported Due Soon

Berlin, July 3 (U.P.).—Reports from eastern Europe said today that Soviet-backed guerillas will rise against the government of Yugoslav Premier Marshal Tito between August 1 and August 10.

Usually reliable sources said that the Communist "information bureau," backed by the Kremlin, was ready to back up its economic blockade of Yugoslavia with a rebellion sparked by partisans of the "Macedonian League" and aided by Greek and Albanian guerillas.

Informants said that Tito's neighbors would provoke "minor border incidents" to keep the Yugoslav militia busy at frontier guard duty.

Tito Reported Seeing U. S. Agents on Loan

Frankfurt, Germany, July 3 (U.P.).—A German newspaper reported today that Marshall Tito of Yugoslavia is negotiating for a loan with representatives of the United States on the isle of Brioni in the Adriatic Sea.

Die Welt, official British military government German language paper, said Radio Rome had reported Tito was willing to permit free elections in Yugoslavia to establish a coalition government.

Russians Order Purge Of German Titoists

Duesseldorf, Germany, July 3 (U.P.).—The Russians have ordered a secret purge of "Titoists and traitors" among Western Germany's Communists which has already resulted in the ouster of more than 500 party members, trade union leaders said today.

Ruhr union leaders said Trizonia's No. 2 Communist, Walter Fisch, may be among those purged.

Dimitrov's Body On Way to Sofia From Moscow

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 3 (AP).—The body of Premier Georgi Dimitrov was en route to Sofia from Moscow today abroad a funeral train.

Moscow broadcasts said "tens of thousands of Muscovites formed a living corridor along Gorky Street" as the body was borne to the train.

At the bier was a personal wreath from Soviet Prime Minister Josef Stalin.

The Bulgarian cabinet ordered nation-wide mourning.

Marshal Tito sent his personal condolences to Bulgaria.

Czechoslovakia ordered a period of mourning.

Yalta Diverted Patton, Says Gen. de Gaulle

Paris, July 3 (U.P.).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle said today that the late Gen. George S. Patton, jr., might have altered the history of Europe and the world if he had not been held back by decisions made at the Big Three Yalta conference.

Speaking in Tilly at the inauguration of a statue of the commander of the American Third Army, De Gaulle said:

"This great soldier, in his irresistible march to the East, probably could have gone all the way to Berlin if the Yalta Policies had not turned him toward the Danube.

"History will tell us if this decision will not weigh for centuries on the life of Europe and the destiny of the world."

(It has been reported, and denied, that one agreement at Yalta was to let the Russians take Berlin. De Gaulle evidently chose to accept the report instead of the denial.)

Gen. MacArthur Castigates Communism

Tokyo, July 3 (AP).—General MacArthur castigated communism today as "national and international outlawry" and questioned its right to legal sanction.

"That is should continue to advance its treacherous purposes behind the shield of those very freedoms which, to succeed, it must destroy, is one of the paradoxes of the age, and poses the question as to whether such a movement should longer be accorded the validity, the sanction and the protection of the law," he declared.

The supreme commander of the Japanese occupation made his remarks in a statement issued on the eve of American Independence Day.

It came as Japanese Communists were trying to incite labor unrest and staging mass demonstrations, and as the scheduled economy discharges of 100,000 Japanese government public service workers raised a threat of nation-wide strikes.

However, MacArthur stated, here in Japan the great masses of the people are unmoved by the line of Communist propaganda, for they fully comprehend the incipient threat of the Communist movement.

"They are and will remain an effective bulwark to stem its advance east and discourage its advanced south."

There was no doubt MacArthur's statement was directed principally to the Japanese, who are somewhat frightened and puzzled by the recent encroachment of communism on the adjoining Asiatic continent.

The commander said that American democracy faced "two challenging tests" in Japan:

"Its adaptability where tradition, culture and custom have been evolved under political, economic and social concepts irreconcilable with the concept of human freedom; and its power of resistance, despite conditions of political instability, economic impoverishment and social unrest, to the appeal of the Communist propaganda."

On both counts, he said, Americanism was the winner and "the resulting blend between the best of the East and the best of the West is proving an impregnable front against communism's most aggressive assaults."

Chinese Reds Make Editor Apologize

Shanghai, July 3 (U.P.).—Communist authorities today compelled American editor Randall Gould to apologize to former employes who tried to force their way into his apartment Friday for "injuries" suffered in the incident.

Under the threat of a "severe penalty," Gould sent apology notes to be published in two Shanghai newspapers today and agreed to apologize personally to employes of his closed newspaper, the Evening Post and Mercury, at a special meeting Monday.

At a hearing yesterday, Gould pleaded he was defending his home against trespassers. He said today that his argument was "brushed aside." His lawyer advised him to make the apology requested by city authorities.

Nationalist warplanes bombed Shanghai for the second time today.

Three government planes, including at least one four-engined B-29 bomber dropped four or five bombs in the outskirts. There were no known casualties.

Other Nationalist planes showered Nanking with leaflets, warning of future raids.

New Writers' Group Seeks Limited World Government

New York, July 3 (AP).—Seventeen American writers today announced formation of the "writers' board for world government" with the purpose of working to transform the United Nations into a limited world government. They include five Pultizer Prize winners.

In an appeal to other writers to join, the board said that so long as there is no world agency with authority transcending that of individual nations war "is inevitable."

Rex Stout, mystery writer, is chairman of the board.

Atom Restraint

The intent behind Senator Flanders' proposal that the United States pledge itself never to use an atomic bomb in warfare save in retaliation for an attack by another power using precisely such a weapon is thoroughly praiseworthy. Nevertheless, the idea seems to us essentially naive. Modern wars are fought not for limited objectives but for survival; they entail, therefore, the use of every resource at a nation's command, including weapons abhorrent to all civilized values. The only way to prevent the use of such weapons is to prevent war.

When one considers that an attack on the United States might involve employment by the aggressor nation of some hideous new weapon not now in our own arsenal, it must seem quixotic to deprive ourselves of what may be our most effective means of striking back. And when one reflects that the atomic bomb constitutes a principal defense of the United States against other forms of military strength now in being—a huge mobilized land army, for instance—a promise not to use the bomb, save as a reprisal in kind, seems a form of unilateral disarmament altogether imprudent in times like the present. This country is already firmly pledged not to commit aggression. The peace of the world is promoted rather than endangered by knowledge that it possesses, and is prepared if necessary to use, the most formidable of weapons in defense.

Reply To Mr. Brannan

The Washington Post does not agree with Secretary Brannan's thesis, advanced on the opposite page, that a limited trial run of his production payment method would afford a satisfactory test of the effectiveness of his comprehensive program. In our opinion, the worth of this program cannot be determined by selective, empirical tests. Judgment should be based on an analysis of its long-range possible and probable effects on the economy. In stating that the Brannan high support prices would encourage overproduction and necessitate resort to extensive marketing and production controls, we were not indulging in surmises or dodging discussion of the plan on its merits. The aim was simply to expose the inherent weaknesses of the plan.

We realize that alternative price support plans provide for production controls, and we regard such controls as an essential feature of any plan that undertakes to put a floor under prices of farm products. But, as we stated in an editorial published on June 11, "the higher and more inflexible the support levels, the more restrictive those control measures are bound to be." With relatively low levels of support prices as a safeguard against excessive price decline and with provisions in the law for adjusting support levels to variations in the supply of the supported commodity, farmers would be under pressure to shift to the production of crops for which the market demand was not satiated.

Secretary Brannan argues that the lower the price, the harder the farmer will work to produce more of the same thing. This is as hoary an argument as any we have advanced in opposition to the Brannan plan and it is, in our opinion, untenable. For, in spite of the farmer's well-known reluctance to put his land to new uses, the fact is that farmers have become increasingly price-conscious and are responding to changing demands for agricultural products by shifts in production. If Secretary Brannan is right in assuming that they react perversely to price declines, it follows that severe governmentally imposed restrictions on output are the only protection against overproduction. In our opinion, farmers can safely be allowed and are entitled to some freedom of action in deciding whether to grow less of this and more of that crop, provided they are not encouraged by high and rigid support prices to pile up unsalable surpluses.

Our criticism of the Brannan plan as an encouragement of overproduction is not in conflict with the aim of agricultural abundance, as the Secretary charges. In urging the need for controls to curtail wasteful production Mr. Brannan himself admits that overproduction is a problem that has to be dealt with. He certainly does not mean to imply that overproduction, as the term is generally understood, is an essential condition of abundance. On the contrary, it is an obstacle to better utilization of productive resources that would benefit consumers. For land withdrawn from the production of superabundant crops can be used to produce other products for which there is a margin of unsatisfied demand.

Perhaps we were a bit rash in referring to the Brannan plan as a "guarantee" of farm income. For, as Mr. Brannan says, the vicissitudes of weather and pests make firm guarantees impossible. That is one of the reasons why agricultural control systems are so likely to disappoint expectations. As an excuse for our loose phrasing, however, we note that the Secretary has said that his program "is intended to assure a volume of farm income and purchasing power which it is in the public interest to maintain." Finally, we have certainly never said or implied that price support programs "should be used when they are meaningless, but should be abandoned when they would do some good." Far from it; we merely pointed out that in recent years when demands for foodstuffs have been abnormally heavy there has been little need for price supports as a protection against price declines. In fact, in some cases such supports have encouraged increases in production. There has been no real test of the program except in a few outstanding instances, such as potatoes, that emphasize the dangers of high price support programs when applied to communities in excess supply.

The country is now faced by the necessity of dealing with problems of surplus supply on an extended scale, it may be for the indefinite future. To urge downward revision of the present price support policy to deal with this radically different situation is a counsel of prudence, not a demand for abolition of all protective controls.

Triumph Of Justice

"I was here," said Judge Reeves in sentencing Judith Coplon to a maximum of 10 years in prison for attempting to betray her country, "to see that justice was done." To his everlasting credit, he performed his task well. From the beginning to the end of the trial the defense attorney, Archibald Palmer, had tried to evoke the atmosphere of a Hollywood farce. Judge Reeves did not succeed in restraining the lawyer, but he did prevent the court and the jury from being distracted by Mr. Palmer's studied combination of hysteria and sentimentality. At every point these tactics were countered by the calm, patience and fairness of the American judicial tradition at its best.

It was Judge Reeves' determination to keep the trial free from any taint of unfairness that caused him to order that a number of FBI files be opened to the jury and, incidentally, the press. Now he admits that in doing this he "even imperiled the Government's best interests." But in any event he avoided the danger of sending a woman to prison under conditions that might have reflected upon our process of justice. That is an achievement of which any judge may well be proud.

It is true that Judge Reeves has left the Department of Justice a very grave problem, as Attorney General Clark has amply emphasized. Every person accused in the future of spying or of taking confidential documents with the intent of using them to his country's disadvantage will try to embarrass the Government by demanding full exposure of confidential FBI reports. Such reports cannot be revealed indiscriminately without risk of damage to many innocent persons and without drying up the sources of confidential information heretofore open to the FBI. Obviously some means of meeting this dilemma will have to be found—means that will safeguard the rights of the person on trial and at the same time enable the Government to bring cases of this kind into court without destroying its own investigative system.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Reeves also slipped into the easy error of saying that the convicted girl was attempting "to give aid and comfort to the enemies of the country." Everyone knows that the Communists have made themselves the "enemies" of the United States in the popular sense of the word. But, in the legal sense, Russia, which would have been the beneficiary of Miss Coplon's crime if it had succeeded, is not our enemy and should not be so described by implication from the bench. If we had been at war with Russia, the crime would have been treason. Aside from this slip of the tongue and even the disclosure of FBI reports, Judge Reeves has given the country a heartening demonstration of both the virility and the patience of American justice. While our judges follow the tradition that he exemplifies, the twin dangers of having our courts turned into either circuses or star-chambers will be greatly minimized.

Old Masters

From the depths of a German salt mine to Washington last year came one of the greatest collections of paintings in the world. The masterpieces were on display in the National Gallery for 40 days, and nearly one million persons crowded in to see them. Some of them then went on tour to other cities in the United States and all have now been returned to Wiesbaden.

Next August another collection of art, this one from various Vienna museums, is expected to come. It is now in London, after having been seen in half a dozen other western European capitals. The Austrian cabinet, under criticism from the Communists for subservience to the "art-robbers of Wall Street," has approved shipment to the United States for not longer than 18 months of about 200 paintings that can stand the climate, many sculptures, the great Hapsburg collection of medieval armor, and other articles of fine artisanship. Its generous decision was strongly motivated by gratitude to the United States for restoring Nazi-stolen art and for postwar economic aid.

So far as we can find out, detailed arrangements for the exhibit are still in the preliminary stage. It is a good time to make sure that we shall not have another exhibition of rushing and pushing humanity. Apparently the collection is to be in London for a couple of months, and, though London is a much larger city than Washington, last year's demonstration of interest in the German masters argues for an equally long stay here. With the facilities available, including the Freer Gallery and National Museum, the articles other than the paintings could be arranged for exhibit to excellent advantage. The Austrian authorities have shown themselves as generous of time for the collection's stay in this country as anyone could ask. Now it is up to the museum people here to make the show a success.

Dimitrov

Georgi Dimitrov was reputed to be the only member of the inner hierarchy of the Communist Party who was not a Russian. How much substance there was to this reputation, to just what degree he was trusted by Stalin, would be difficult to say. Now that he is dead his long services to the party and the cause of world revolution are being recognized in the most elaborate official tributes, and Stalin himself is said to have taken a turn in the guard of honor about Dimitrov's coffin, as it lay in state in the Hall of Trade Unions at Moscow.

Yet only a few weeks ago Dimitrov's absence from Sofia had given rise to rumors that he was in disgrace, and one report, published in Berlin, said that he had been arrested on orders of the Kremlin and deported to Russia. These rumors evidently grew out of revelations of a serious schism within the Bulgarian Communist Party through the expulsion from the party of one of Dimitrov's lieutenants, Traicho Kostov, who had previously been dismissed from his posts in the government. Kostov was accused of sympathy with the Titoist heresy, and similar purges were occurring at the time among Communists in other Balkan countries.

The official explanation, however, was that Dimitrov had obtained leave from the party to go to Moscow for treatment of diabetes. This is on the whole quite plausible, for it had been known for some time that he had been suffering from the disease. He was besides an important member of the Cominform and had always accepted the concept of the party as a strictly disciplined organism responding like an automaton to every order from the center. But the mere fact that such rumors could be circulated about so celebrated a personage as Dimitrov shows the suspicion and distrust everywhere engendered by Communist methods.

Dimitrov was an almost perfect type of the professional revolutionist. The "class struggle" was the single passion of his life, the focus of all his tremendous energies. He was converted almost in childhood to the Marxist gospel and instinctively identified himself with its most extreme sect. His youth was spent in fomenting strikes and riots and in unremitting war against moderates in the trade unions. He was a perpetual headache to the Bulgarian police, and, although he was elected to the National Assembly, he spent the greater part of his time in jail or in hiding.

He immediately recognized his spiritual and ideological affinity with the Bolsheviks who took control of Russia in the October revolution of 1919. With great difficulty and danger, and after many adventures, he made his way to Moscow to participate in the Third International and returned to Bulgaria a member of its Executive Committee. He called at once for an uprising against the Tsar Boris and rallied a considerable army of workmen, which was, however, routed by the Royalist troops, and the survivors, including the leader, fled into Yugoslavia.

In the long underground life that followed Dimitrov took over direction of all Communist activities in the Balkans. When the Nazis, after the Reichstag fire of 1933, chose him as their victim in the propaganda trial they were planning to hold on the Moscow formula they had no intimation of his identity and importance; if they had, he would of course never have been brought to trial at all. Dimitrov's contemptuous defiance of Goering won him the admiration of the world, and he fought his accusers with so much skill and courage that the court was obliged to acquit him. It was a costly mistake for the Nazis and a fateful incident in the history of the twentieth century.

Thus, when the Soviet government obtained his release from prison and transported him to Moscow, it was to capitalize his great prestige among the enemies of fascism. He was made general secretary of the Comintern and given the task of organizing those world-wide working alliances with leftist liberals and non-Communist radicals that became known as the popular fronts. He did his work well. It is perhaps not too much to say that the tremendous advances of Communist influence in this period were as much owing to his skill in exploiting the fear of fascism as to any other single factor.

TO ONE AT SEA

You must go out into the wild blue morning,
Child of the sea, and leave the land behind,
Tasting the salt-edged air, the white spray flying,
Staring at stars until your eyes grow blind.

You must go plunging into the purple twilights,
Tilting the moon upon your ship's sharp prow,
Forevermore the sea's dark music around you,
The mist of midnight cold upon your brow.

But when the yellow tides of sunrise glitter,
Foaming in sudden light across the sky,
Do you not turn and reach for one remembered,
And wake toward morning with a sudden cry?

Antilynching Law

Hodding Carter's June 26 article comparing the Georgia lynching of a Negro "badman" and the lynching of a Dartmouth College student by his fellows is certain proof that lynchings do not happen only in Georgia.

In Georgia, however, lynchings are fairly common. Most often the victim is a Negro, sometimes a criminal, sometimes a voter going to the polls. College lynchings are not unheard of, but they do not seem to concentrate on Negroes and their intent is not usually murder.

Mr. Carter's suggestion that the Dartmouth incident is "a more dangerous symptom of social ills than was the murder of the Georgia Negro" is a bit of piffle. A life is a life, and there are quite a few more lives going down the drain in our slums than in our colleges.

It is certain that whenever mob spirit is allowed to develop—whether among 8 persons or 8000—certain violent things, including death, are likely to happen; the two incidents, different in circumstances but equal in deadly results, are proof of this. And the fact that the two incidents could and did take place and their perpetrators were inadequately punished by local officials is shocking proof of the absolute necessity for strong, effective antilynch laws that will work equally in Georgia and in New Hampshire.

Diminishing Returns

The arrogance of these so-called labor leaders, such as Lewis, Murray, Green, Reuther, et al, is becoming unendurable. They are now as arrogant as they contended that capital was a score of years ago, and they should receive the same treatment, which the Taft-Hartley gave to some extent.

These so-called leaders have completely ignored the law of diminishing returns, and the result is the controversy now precipitated by Lewis. As he finds that work is falling off, he wants to make up for it by reducing working time—but with full pay. That may not be the expressed attitude at the moment, but it is in the back of his head.

Now, we are already victimized by about $20 a ton coal, which is, with other high prices, crucifying a lot of pensioners, annuitants, white collar and other like people. Yet this fellow is taking a tack that will again increase the price of coal and further diminish the purchasing power of the great mass of people. He is not too dumb to know of the law of diminishing returns, therefore one wonders at his actions, and just what his ultimate program is.

Assaying Patriotism

Throughout the world, many of us are despairingly aware that one of the most un-American and undemocratic activities going on in the United States today is the functioning of a "Committee on Un-American Activities," as set up in Congress.

It is beginning to create a great deal of confusion of democratic thinking both within and without the shores of America. Much false hysteria over who is and who is not patriotic among perfectly innocent people has been inspired by recent practices and rights of this committee.

We do not wish to see in the United States a condition of public hysteria as in the days of the French revolution where every other person was falsely accused of being an "Aristo."

The idea of America having a committee in Congress set up to determine the level of a man's patriotism is both repulsive and insulting to the people of America and undignified for the Congress of the United States.

Let us now, as the American public, calmly and reasonably begin to consider the elimination of this undemocratic committee, and in its place give our honorable Congressmen tasks more worthy of the dignity of their position.

Double Standard

Permit me to comment on the decision of Justice I. Montefiore Levy of New York carried on your front page of June 27. He stated a man is justified in forsaking his impure bride when he himself was impure. His ruling was based on the fact that "society" condones the fact that most men have had sex relations prior to marriage but that it is customary for women to be pure.

Are not virgin women for virtuous men? Did God give man any special freedom in pernicious sex relations? Do the laws of New York give man any special privileges? Was it not Christ himself who said you shall reap what you sow? Does it not follow, that if we sow the seeds of defilement, we shall surely reap the harvest therefrom?

Congress' Behavior

As a professor of sociology at a Middle Western university, I have spent several weeks in Washington studying the composition and behavior of Congress. Two of my observations in this study may interest your readers.

I have noticed, first, that there is a rough correlation between the character of the districts represented by members of the House of Representatives and their votes on contemporary social issues. Thus, the voting records of members from the urban districts of the North and West tend, by and large, to be more liberal or progressive; while the voting behavior of Congressmen from the backward districts of the rural South tends generally to be illiberal and regressive.

States with a low ratio of resources to population—like Mississippi, South Carolina and Georgia — are represented in Congress by members whose attitudes on such issues as housing, health, and District home rule are regarded as benighted by members from the more advanced and prosperous sections of the country. Here again we see that the stream of government can rise no higher than its source.

I have also observed that the enactments of Congress, taken as a whole and over the short run at least, tend to lag behind public opinion. Regardless of whether the Republicans or the Democrats are in power, the laws passed by our National Legislature fail to come up to the expectations of the people. Doubtless the causes of this legislative lag are multiple. But if it continues long enough, I fear that it will accelerate the decline of Congress in public esteem and undermine our faith in representative government.

Church And State

There have been numerous references in your columns (and in letters from your readers) to the so-called "doctrine of separation of church and state." For example, this "doctrine" has been advanced as a reason to oppose "released time" programs either on or off the property of public schools. It has also been used by you and Bishop Oxnam in support of some of the provisions of the Barden bill.

The practice of using this phrase as a substitute for thinking has produced some curious inconsistencies on your part. For example, if there really exists a "separation" doctrine of the extent generally implied, why was there no opposition to the Navy's V-12 program? As you know, scores of sectarian institutions were saved from extinction during the war by virtue of Government subsidies. If there is the so-called "wall of separation between church and state," did it disappear during the war?

Again, there are numerous Federal hospitals, i.e., Soldiers Home, Washington, D. C.; Carville Leprosy Sanitarium at Carville, La., to mention only two, which now and for many years have been using Catholic nuns as nurses.

Further, both the Army and Navy have now and for some years have had a Corps of Chaplains.

Numerous other examples might be mentioned, including the tax-exempt status of religious organizations, the grant-in-aid program to sectarian institutions for hospital construction, etc. How you can become exercised about problems of "released time" or Federal aid to education under the banner of "the basic doctrine of separation of church and state" and hold your tongue when many more obvious "violations" take place, provides a fertile field for conjecture.

Perhaps the basic difficulty under which you and others are laboring lies in the fact that the so-called "doctrine" has a rather limited constitutional footing. The only basis in the Constitution is the provision in the first amendment which reads: Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof . . . " Although applying literally to Congress, it was also made applicable to the States under the fourteenth amendment.

Some thoughtful persons believe that it was designed primarily to prevent the establishment by the State or Federal Government of a state or national church. The example of the Episcopal Church in Virginia, which was supported by tithes, comes readily to mind. It has been pretty well accepted that the provision was intended to prohibit the State and Federal Governments from giving direct aid, financial or otherwise, to religion. How much further it was intended to go has raised questions not capable of easy solution.

In brief, the problems of "released time," free medical and transportation services to children attending sectarian schools, aid to sectarian institutions performing a public function, and those of a related nature, appear to be matters primarily of legislative policy. They cannot be solved by casual reference to a broad "doctrine" whose sole basis in the Constitution is a brief provision, the precise meaning and extent of which are still uncertain and open to question.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

The Lines Are Drawn

WASHINGTON—Not since the days of James F. Byrnes has any member of the Senate displayed such technically effective legislative leadership as did Robert A. Taft of Ohio last week. The day before, even the hour before the key vote, Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas was still assuring the White House that the Senate would do to the Taft-Hartley Act substantially what the President wanted done.

But on the big day, Taft began the task of putting the final pressure and persuasion on the waverers at 7 a. m. Long prior to the vote that afternoon he knew the secret purposes of every Senator and correctly predicted his own victory by the narrowest possible margin. It was almost ludicrous to see Capehart of Indiana, for example, who must face a labor electorate next year, quaking like a vast political blancmange as he cast his vote for Taft. Yet it was also a remarkable tribute to Taft's grim efficiency and force.

Taft's triumph has already been sufficiently celebrated, however. What now deserves investigation is the probable political result of this Senate action, which will certainly produce a ringing presidential veto of the new labor bill. What will Taft's triumph do to Taft himself, to Taft's party, and to the allied Southern Democrats?

Taft was above all astonishingly successful in committing his party in the Senate to his viewpoint. Only six Republican Senators differed with him in the vote on the crucial Lucas amendment, which was defeated 46 to 44. He had to build roaring political fires under such Senators as Capehart and Hendrickson, of New Jersey. These men quite openly hankered to vote the other way, yet they yielded in the end to the business leaders and Republican organization chieftains mobilized by Taft.

THE TEST of the desirability of this commitment to the Taft brand of Republicanism will obviously come in 1950. Although there will be other important contests, all will turn in the end upon Taft's own battle in Ohio, which he regards as so important that he will begin stumping the State late this summer, 14 months before the election. What he did last week has squarely posed the issue and drawn the lines for the fight.

Taft's most dangerous Ohio opponent, Governor Frank Lausche, has definitely taken himself out of the senatorial race because he wants to have the State delegation at the Democratic Presidential convention in 1952. But this means that Lausche will seek re-election as Governor, adding his pulling power to the Democratic ticket. Meanwhile, the Democratic senatorial candidate will probably be the State Auditor, Joseph Ferguson, the kind of genial, rather uninspiring political professional who is always known as a "good vote-getter," and can call most inhabitants of the State by their first names.

Immense forces will be rallied for this Ohio struggle. The labor groups will put everything they have into the effort to defeat Taft. And while the Republicans sanctimoniously complain about "outside labor money," it is an open secret that right-wing businessmen all over the country are already laying the cash on the line to aid the Taft campaign.

In a sense, it is too bad that Taft's competition will be a man of smaller stature. None the less, whatever may be Ferguson's defects, the Ohio election will really turn on the trend in the country. If Senator Taft's brand of Republicanism is still popular as he thinks it is, he will be re-elected. If not, he will be beaten. Either way, the consequences will be extraordinarily far-reaching.

WHAT TAFT REALLY wants is the Republican presidential nomination in 1952. There are various other Republicans who are also making advance plans. For instance, in New York, it seems very probable that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey means to retain control of the State delegation; to become the Warwick of the next Republican convention; and having made his king, to take some such reward as the Secretaryship of State. But Dewey and all Taft's rivals will be almost powerless if the Ohio Senator wins reelection by any sort of majority in 1950. In that event, the convention will be dominated by the sort of Republican who complained about Dewey's "me-too" tactics last time. Taft will be the odds-on favorite to get the nomination he wants so badly and has tried for so often.

On the other hand, if Taft is beaten in Ohio next year, his brand of Republicanism will be finished forever. The uncertainty that even now afflicts the other Republican right wingers was splendidly symbolized by the quaking Capehart, than whom no Senator has a more reactionary record. A Taft defeat will be a grisly warning, sending them all running for cover. And in that event, the Southern Democrats in Congress will also be left isolated and unprotected, and may be expected in the end to wither on the political vine. Before very long, in fact, we are really going to know where this country is heading.

A Communication

Brannan Replies To 'Statism' Charge

I HAVE READ your editorial of June 22, "The Road to Statism," with considerable surprise that The Washington Post would repeat, if not approve, some of the most specious arguments which have been presented against my recommended price support program. I thought these arguments had been trotted out so often in the past to oppose any progressive legislation that they might by this time be more easily recognized as something other than the real issues.

I have favored a proposal to give me a "trial run" on the production payment method for several commodities because I believe that the merits of any proposal will be judged fairly by trial. To oppose a trial run, such as you have done, is to avoid meeting the merits. You choose, rather, merely to examine the plan on its face and you conclude that it "encourages overproduction and would necessitate extensive production and marketing controls over virtually every crop."

I think that if you would examine my plan less superficially you would point out with your usual editorial fairness that production controls are part of an alternative plan as well. Your passing slur at encouraging overproduction does not tell the reader whether you think people now have too little to eat, enough to eat, or too much to eat; nor does it square with your general attitude that we should aim t agricultural abundance so far as possible.

MOREOVER, you repeat a grossly mistaken theme from earlier editorials on the subject by stating that my proposals would "guarantee" farm income. Your farm readers will know, and I think you should know, that my recommendations are a long way from guaranteeing farm income.

Until the weather, insects, and scores of other physical hazards connected with farming can be guaranteed to be favorable, I see no way to guarantee farm income. What I have recommended to Congress is that it is in the public interest to assure farmers that if they use their machinery and resources and energy to produce a crop, then they should receive a stable income from that crop.

You point out accurately that prices of farm commodities, with very few exceptions, have been so high that price supports have not added to the cost of food. In fact, you even give support programs credit for probably having kept food prices lower than they otherwise would have been by encouraging larger production. But when you come to today's conditions and the beginning of "surpluses," you back away from price support programs. What this says is that support programs should be used when they are meaningless, but should be abandoned when they would do some good.

IT IS erroneous to say that I have refused to estimate the cost of my recommendations. I have given the Congress considerable information, commodity by commodity, comparing the costs of my proposals and the operations necessary under existing legislation. I have refused, and I still refuse, to compare my proposals with no program at all.

Nor have I engaged in the idle game of pulling an over-all figure out of the hat. The Secretary of Agriculture has never before been asked to make such an estimate, nor was Senator Aiken ever asked to estimate the cost of the legislation which bears his name and is scheduled to go into effect on January 1, unless changed.

One of the reasons you like Senator Aiken's measure is that "it institutes relatively low levels of support prices varying with the supply of the support commodity." This, too, means that the price support program will do the least good when it is most needed—both by farmers and by the public interest in a stable economy.

In my opinion, the lowering of production prices is not only regressive in its approach, but conflicts with our experience in agriculture. When prices fall, farmers are compelled to reduce even more in order to achieve enough income to keep operating. This, of course, depresses prices further and intensifies the race to maintain a living standard by piling up production. I believe that it is a wasteful way to use our vast agricultural resources, including the human beings who run our agricultural plant.

ONE OF the main features of my recommendations is the "production payment," which is designed to enable farmers to do just what that term says—go on producing. At the same time, I would allow prices of perishable commodities, on which production payments would be used, to seek their natural level in the market place. In short, we would let consumers in on full production, instead of keeping it from them by keeping prices of the entire commodity at a high level.

This is a goal in which I strongly believe, but I believe also in the fullest discussion of the method of doing the job I have repeatedly asked for constructive suggestions on these proposals, but I have been disappointed at the number of people who criticize them only by dragging out the old labels, such as "regimentation" and "statism." I think that the problem facing agriculture, and thus the rest of the country, deserves more serious treatment.

CHARLES F. BRANNAN,
Secretary of Agriculture.

11 Are Killed in Maryland

struck a telephone pole near Webb's Corners on the Maryland Eastern Shore. The brother, taken to a hospital at Easton, was expected to recover.

Mrs. Lily Lewis, 43, of Bel Air, died a few hours after her husband's car struck a parked truck on Bel Air road near Kingsville. Four other persons were hurt in the accident.

When his car went out of control on U. S. Route 1 near Baltimore and hit a telephone pole, George Flowers, 40, of Jersey City, N. J., was killed instantly. Two of the six other persons in the car were injured.

Two Baltimore women were drowned when a small boat capsized in Cara Cove near North East, Md., early Sunday. They were identified as Florence Mutter, 36, and Eleanor R. Carlton, 38.

State police reported the two women were with a party of persons coming ashore in a small boat from a cabin cruiser when the small boat capsized.

LeRoy Welk, 35-year-old Westminster, Md., resident, was reported drowned while fishing in the Potomac River near the mouth of the Monocacy River in Frederick County.

A companion, John H. Warner, swam to shore.

Jean Elizabeth Keefauver, 11 months old, drowned in the bathtub of her Cumberland home when her mother left the room for a few minutes.

Frank Pielot, 58, a cook on a tugboat, was drowned when he fell into Baltimore harbor after sliding off the tug's rail.

The engineer and fireman of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad's eastbound passenger train, the Diplomat, were killed when the Diplomat plowed into the rear of a stalled stock train near Oakland. The crewmen were identified as E. C. Fromhart, engineer, and W. L. Hartman, fireman, both of Keyser, W. Va. None of the Diplomat's passengers nor members of the crew of the stock train was hurt.

In Virginia, police said the mangled body of James William Elder, 27, was found early yesterday on the Norfolk & Western Railroad tracks near Brookneal. The body of the victim, a farmer of the Brookneal area, was found by two pedestrians.

Traffic accident victims were listed by police as:

Mrs. Inez Beatrice Bennett, 41, of Richmond.

David R. Stokes, 26, of South Hill.

Raymond Hazelwood, 22, of Diascund, in James City County.

Otto H. Sylvester, 60, of Bethesda, Md.

William E. Pogue, 19, of Gadsden, Ala.

George Washington Fields, 46, of Dolphin, Va.

Ernest McKinley Summers, 36, of Baltimore.

Mrs. Bennett was struck by an automobile near stop 29 on the Petersburg pike, south of Richmond.

Stokes died in a Richmond hospital. He had been in a motorcycle accident.

Hazelwood was killed instantly in a noncollision accident Saturday night on Route 610, 5 miles south of Toano, in James City County.

Sylvester died Friday night in a Marion hospital. He had been injured several hours earlier in an accident 5 miles from Marion.

Pogue was killed Sunday afternoon when the automobile he was driving was in a non-collision accident on Route 11, 5 miles west of Pulaski.

Fields died Sunday in a Roanoke Rapids, N. C., hospital. He had been run over by a truck on Route 606, 5 miles east of Lawrenceville Saturday night.

Summers died Saturday in a Charlottesville hospital of injuries received several hours earlier in a collision automobile accident on Route 29, a mile north of Ruckersville.

Better Crops in Three Areas First Aim in 'Point 4' Plans

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Bigger and better food crops in the Middle East, southeast Asia and parts of Latin America will be a first priority in President Truman's so-called "Point Four" program for the development of backward areas.

Officials here have their eyes on four main regions where they believe the program can get under way quickly—and without any large-scale spending of American public funds.

One comprises the parched lands of the Middle East, including the Arab countries, Palestine, Turkey and Iran. Most of these countries produced more food in ancient times than now; common to the majority of them is a lack of irrigation, an abysmal ignorance of soil conservation methods, and a low standard of living caused in part by illiteracy and disease.

Lack Technical Experts

The second group consists of India, Pakistan and Ceylon, which can finance many important development projects, but have tried ever since the war to get technical experts from the United States and other more advanced countries.

The third group, politically important in view of Chinese Communist successes, consists of the awakening nations of southeast Asia: Burma, Siam, Indo-China, Indonesia and the Philippines. In all of them, especially in Siam, there is ample evidence that food production can be increased by introducing more scientific methods and by showing the people how to use them.

The fourth group is the Latin American, notably Brazil, where a useful beginning has been made in the existing program of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs and United States Government departments. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted recently to continue the I. I. A. A. program for another five years, but with a United States contribution only half as great as President Truman had sought.

No Official List Yet

There still is no official list of the countries where the United States intends to carry on its double-barreled program of putting American "show-how" to work and of coaxing private capital to flow abroad.

American help under Point Four will go only to those countries which agree formally to cooperate with American technical experts, and which guarantee fair treatment to American capital.

For this reason no cut-and-dried list of countries will be submitted when the House Foreign Affairs Committee starts public hearings on the request for $45,000,000 to start the technical assistance program.

Yet officials are coming to see clearly that the Middle East, the Indian sub-continent of India, Southeast Asia and Latin America offer the most promising fields for getting the Point Four program under way.

'Grinding Poverty'

All four groups suffer from what the President, in his message to Congress on June 24, called "grinding poverty." The average annual income of their people before the war was estimated at less than $50 per person, compared to $554 in the United States. Their diet was only slightly above the level needed to keep body and soul together.

The yield of wheat in Palestine, to take one example, was only six bushels per acre, and in India only eleven bushels, compared to more than 40 in western Europe. In Indonesia, another example, there was only one doctor for every 60,000 people, compared to one for every 700 in the United States.

Tentative Conclusions

In general, the needs of these under-developed countries are so vast and varied that officials have wondered where to begin in any effort to raise standards of living. Studies of the past few months have produced these tentative conclusions: That the place not to begin is industrial development; that the first steps, in most cases, will not require private capital on a large scale; and that agriculture, public health and basic education are the fields in which the first efforts will yield the greatest results at the lowest cost.

Cooperative agricultural experiments in Latin America and the Philippines already have shown what a comparatively small outlay by the United States can accomplish.

In the Philippines, the Bureau of Plant Industry of the pre-war government had raised the yield of rice from 650 pounds per acre in 1910 to 1000 pounds in 1940, on the eve of the Japanese attack. Most of the experiment stations were destroyed in the war, but a joint Philippine-American finance commission has proposed rebuilding them as part of an agricultural development program costing about $17,500,000 a year for five years.

In Guatemala, where the standard of living depends heavily on coffee production, American technical assistance has shown how coffee yields can be doubled or tripled by planting in nurseries the seed of high-yielding trees. In this case a single horticulturist, sent by the United States Department of Agriculture, worked cooperatively with Guatemalan officials to accomplish this result.

In Cuba and El Salvador a substitute for jute, known as kenaf, has been developed and produced commerially through the cooperation of the local governments, the United States Departments of Agriculture and Commerce, and private enterprise.

In Peru, the government has had American technical help in developing the barbasco plant as a source of rotenone, an insect-killer formerly imported from the Far East. Today Peru grows more barbasco than the entire world production before the war, and has developed a new product from barbasco which may replace rotenone entirely.

In El Salvador, technical experts provided from Washington have helped to discover that the waste pulp of the coffee bean could be made into a cattle feed as a substitute for corn. If this discovery were applied to all the coffee-pulp in Brazil and other big coffee-producing countries, it would be a substitute for an estimated 34 million bushels of feed corn.

Another Fourth!

This is America's day. In times when the trouble-makers of the world sneer at patriotism, when love of country is considered old-fashioned — or worse — by the so-called "citizens of the world" it is good for us to re-dedicate ourselves to all that America means to us.

Liberty and freedom are not empty words nor too much used if we forever keep their vital significance in our minds.

Speeches, fireworks, flags and flowers on our loved ones eternal sleeping places, elaborate ceremonies—these are the visible, superficial symbols.

The truths that matter are the thoughts in our minds, the courage in our hearts to give the limit of ourselves to keeping America American.

De Gaullist Denials of Fascist Aims Sound Like Mussolini's

By Frank Gervasi
Post Reporter

Paris, July 3.—The criticism most often leveled at Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Rassemblement du Peuple Francaise by French as well as foreign observers is that it would give France a fascist or quasi-fascist regime if it should come to power.

This, De Gaulle's aides at his undistinguished RPE headquarters in the Quartier St. Germain, hotly deny. In the general's and the RPF's defense they make the following points:

1. Gaullism does not advocate a one-party system.
2. The movement does not propose suppression of labor unions.
3. It is not anti-Semitic.
4. While admittedly nationalist, it does not intend to export that nationalism.
5. It has few of the trappings and millinery of totalitarianism.

The defense is not altogether convincing to anyone familiar with the genesis of fascism, at least in its Italian and Spanish expressions.

Benito Mussolini did not propose to abolish opposing political parties when he came to power, and he promised to respect trade unions. He embraced anti-Semitism and racial theories 15 years after he took over the government "legally" at the "invitation" of King Victor Emmanuel.

One of Mussolini's most frequently reiterated assurances to the outside world—he told me at least twice—was that fascism was "not an export product." And while it is true Gaullism does not have the pulse-stirring externals of Italian or Spanish fascism—the bands, plumes and formations—what guarantee is there it would not acquire them? These come with time and power. Gaullism even now has enough of the choreography of fascism to give this reporter galloping goosepimples.

De Gaulle insists he is against single-party politics and publicity inveighs against "monolithic parties" when he attacks totalitarian communism. But he assails with equal fervor the hopelessness of the present "regime of (many) parties" in France.

"Not a Doctrinaire"

Another frequent criticism of the Gaullist movement is that it lacks a program for solving France's pressing economic and social problem. In the reply to this objection. De Gaulle's defenders again sound familiar.

"Gaullism," said one of the General's aides, "is not doctrinaire. It has no specific program largely because the RPF is not yet a fully formed party. But also because we are empiricists. We learn by doing. We meet problems as they come . . ."

It was one of Mussolini's fondest boasts that he was not a "doctrinaire" and that his program evolved from day to day to meet the "needs of the people."

Despite Gaullists' disavowal of such a program, a political philosophy does emerge from the speeches of De Gaulle himself, the public declarations of his advisers and the votes and statements in the National Assembly of those 70-odd political bigamists who belong to other parties but are followers of Le Gran Charles.

Principal objectives of the RFP, a study discloses, are: Constitutional reform; restoration of French military might; defense and development of French colonies and dependencies, and better labor-management relations.

The Gaullist objectives are far clearer than the methods to obtain them.

The constitutional reforms sought by the RPC deal mainly with changes in the electoral laws which, presumably, would insure a Gaullist victory in an election.

Seats now are allocated in the Assembly to those candidates receiving the most votes, regardless of party. Each party presents in each of France's 90 departments a list of candidates for all contested seats. A department thus may send a dozen members to the Assembly from as many different parties.

The Gaullists would change this system so that the entire list of candidates would be elected automatically if one party got a majority of the votes.

The second and third points in the De Gaulle "program" need little elaboration. De Gaulle is known to favor the strongest, most modern armed forces. In prewar days he was the voice in the French military wilderness crying out against the "Maginot mentality" and demanding armored divisions and coordinated land-air strategy and tactics.

As one who often pines publicly for the France of imperial days, he can be expected to insist, as he does, that what is left of the French Empire be properly defended and economically exploited.

The last point is what sticks most people. De Gaulle's asserted cure for economically ailing France is "association of capital and labor." His aides are at their fuzziest when they try to explain what the phrase means. This is how Jacques Beaumel, De Gaulle's labor adviser and like several of the general's lieutenants a disillusioned former Front Populaire fellow traveler, explained it:

"In every important factory, a partnership would be set up between owners and workers for better labor conditions and more equitable distribution of profits. There would be no political pressures on either side, owners or workers. The idea would be to defend capital from socialism and at the same time meet the needs of the workers."

The De Gaulle formula has frightened big industrial and business interests. They see government moving right into their plants.

To labor groups which might have followed de Gaulle, the scheme savors of fascist corporativism. Neither among these nor the big business elements does de Gaulle have much following. This is limited to the war veterans and the Francais moyen, the middle-class Frenchman of the civil service, small business and small farm owners.

But le Francais moyen is the backbone of France. He is legion and in his element, traditionally conservative, De Gaulle is gaining strength daily. So it was in Italy in 1922 and 1923.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

BECAUSE FOUR of the 12 advertised pros failed to put in an appearance for the Canadian Open's pre-tournament instruction clinic, the St. George Country Club of Montreal is refusing to pay the $1500 guarantee to the PGA . . . Neither of the 1948 pennant winners, the Indians or Braves, was able to place a man on the 1949 All-Star teams with the exception of Manager Lou Boudreau, whose election was automatic . . . when the wind defeated him on a 400-foot drive into left field at Griffith Stadium the other night, Joe DiMaggio surrendered to the extent of hitting a single to right the next time up . . . the voting by the All-American Football Conference coaches on the most-valuable-player award for 1948 ended in a tie. So Otto Graham of Cleveland and Frankie Albert of San Francisco each will get trophies . . . The Nats, certainly not the best club in the American League, deserve one superlative: They're the most hospitable. Griffith Stadium's new, sumptuous dressing rooms for visiting clubs make the Nats' own quarters look like a hovel . . . the Dumont Co.'s purchase of the television rights to Notre Dame's football games includes the right to show the games in theaters, the newest trend . . . another reason why the Yankees are leading the league: Their 75 pinch hitters have made 25 hits and walked 11 times this year for a .391 batting average.

POVICH

MARK THIS, come October: Luke Appling will be named manager of the White Sox after Jack Onslow's contract for 1950 is bought up . . . Appling refuses to move in this season, preferring a fresh start with new talent the White Sox are assembling . . . on the night of June 15, six major league scouts assembled at the Montclair home of Constantine Keriazkos, 18-year-old, 6-foot-3 left-hander who had pitched Montclair High School to the state championship . . . they were awaiting the end of his graduation exercises because big league rules forbid teams to approach a high school player before his graduation. The Red Sox bid $40,000 for him, the Dodgers $50,000 and the White Sox got him for $59,000 . . . the first act of the Greek-American lad was to finance a trip for his dad to his native Sparta . . . Keriazkos was signed to a White Sox farm team contract, but will spend the rest of the 1949 season traveling with the White Sox to soak up baseball knowledge . . . One hotel has set aside 550 rooms for excited Cuban fight fans who will move on Philadelphia to root for Cuba's Kid Gavilan in his welterweight title fight with Ray Robinson July 11 . . . notwithstanding Robinson is still rated the 2-to-1 favorite.

THE CLUB that leads the league on July 4 will win the pennant, according to the adage, but it's only half right according to the records. In the last 34 years, only 17 pennant winners have been on top July 4 . . . but only seven times during that period has the July 4 leader finished worse than second . . . The towns of Cazenovia, N. Y., and New Brunswick, N. J., are awaiting with practically bated breath the fateful date of July 25. On that day a committee of the National Football Shrine, headed by Grantland Rice, will select one of the places as the site of the game's Hall of Fame . . . Lu Gambino, former Maryland fullback, has signed again with the Baltimore Colts. He holds the amazing record of a 39-yard touchdown run against San Francisco—amazing because, though only 39 yards, it's the longest run from scrimmage by a Colt ball carrier in their two years in the league . . . A new set of pennant race odds is being readied by the bigger bookies for announcement after the July 4 double-headers, and will show the Yankees and Dodgers as favorites . . . The National League All-Star team that shows Johnny Mize as the first-base selection ought to strike even Mize as strange. He hasn't even been able to make the Giants' lineup regularly.

UNTIL THE LAUREL trotting track sees fit to announce the official attendance nightly, it must be presumed that track officials are padding the unofficial figures . . . Joe Kuhel exposed himself to the second-guessers the other night when he ordered Yankee Catcher Charlie Silvera purposely passed and put the potential winning run on base. And one customer screamed, "They ought to bench him for a right-handed thinking manager" . . . Vic Raschi of the Yankees is on his way to additional fame as the first pitcher with a college degree to lead the league in games won . . . Dick Duden, Navy's good halfback who resigned his ensign's commission, has turned down the bid of the San Francisco Forty-niners and will sign with one of the New York pro teams to be nearer his New England home . . . In succeeding years, Duden won All-American honors as an end and a halfback . . . Washington basketball fans are booming Bones McKinney for the vacant post as coach of the Caps, despite indications that Bob Feerick will get the job . . . Baseball Commissioner Chandler is annoyed by reports that settlements have been offered Danny Gardella in his suit against organized baseball, and declares "that will never happen. If we are not within the law, let us go to court and find out."

Harrison Has 67, Ties Snead for Lead at 202

By Bus Ham
Post Sports Editor

E. J. ("Dutch") Harrison and Cary Middlecoff stepped up to Sammy Snead at the Prince Georges Country Club yesterday and let Sammy know that he can't have the Washington Star Open championship without a finish fight.

Harrison, a gangling, 6-foot-3 200-pounder from Little Rock, Ark., issued a man-to-man challenge to Snead with a sizzling 67 that caught Sambo at the three-quarter post with a total of 202, 14 under par for the 54 holes.

Middlecoff, businesslike former dentist from Memphis, who beat Snead by one shot for the National Open title last month, moved into today's Fourth of July scrap for the title by also firing a 5-under-par 67 for 204, two strokes behind the leaders.

Chick Harbert Shoots Hole in One

Chick Harbert, Detroit, scored the first hole in one in the Washington Star Open yesterday on the 162-yard fourteenth hole Chick used a six iron.

Snead Has 69

Snead wasn't exactly a duffer with a 69, three under par, but he was far from the crowd pleaser of Saturday when he romped around in 64.

Possibly three others—Skip Alexander, Mid Pines, N. C., 206; and Chick Harbert, Detroit, and Bob Hamilton, playing pro for the host club, at 207—still had an outside chance to win but nobody liked their prospects of picking up shots on the likes of Snead, Harrison and Middlecoff over today's final 18 holes.

Two veterans who were in striking position at the end of 36 holes faded badly yesterday. They were Jim Ferrier, from San Francisco, and Clayton Heafner, big fellow from Charlotte, N. C.

Ferrier Fires 74

Ferrier was in second place with 134 to Snead's 133 when play began yesterday, but Jim blossomed out with a 74, two over par for a total of 208. Heafner, 136 at the half way point, had 73 for the third round and goes into day's windup with 209.

Snead and Harrison played in the same threesome yesterday with Heafner being the third party and Harrison never gave Snead a breathing spell.

Snead knocked in a 40-foot putt for an eagle 3 on the par 5, 485-yard fourth hole, but Harrison matched him stroke for stroke, each making the turn in 33, three under par.

As they came to the tenth tee with 3500 fans running ahead of them, Snead knew better than any one else that he was not on top of his game.

He walked over to the nearby swimming pool, took plenty of time swallowing a cooling drink

Lynch Gains In D. C. Tennis

Fourth-seeded Hugh Lynch entered the quarter finals of the D. C. Men's Tennis Championships with a 6—2, 6—0 win over Jack McCarthy yesterday at the Columbia Country Club.

McCarthy displayed a short-lived brilliance as he broke Lynch's first two serves. From there on in, however, Lynch held him powerless with dynamic forehand drives.

Art Dryer came up with a close 5—7, 6—4, 6—4 victory over Doyal Royal, Maryland U. tennis coach, in what ended up a real grudge affair.

Despite Bill Thaler's blistering two-handed backhand, second-seeded Jick Thackara earned a berth in today's quarter finals by a 6—3, 6—0 win.

Thackara entered his match with Thaler after a morning win by default over Ted Burwell, the tennis playing Rhodes scholar. Burwell took the first set 9-7 and held a one-all tie in the second when he became ill and was forced to default.

Talbert Plays Dorfman in Finals

New York, July 3 (AP).—Defending Champion Billy Talbert, of New York, the country's No. 4 player, today swept into the final of the New York state tennis championship by trouncing fourth-seeded Seymour Greenberg, of Chicago, 6—1, 6—0, 7—5.

Talbert will meet third-seeded Irvin Dorfman, former Eastern Intercollegiate champion from Yale, in the final tomorrow.

Betsy Rawls Wins Trans-Miss. Golf

Lincoln, Nebr., July 3. (AP).—Betsy Rawls of Austin, Tex., today defeated Miss Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., 2 and 1, to win the women's trans-Mississippi golf championship.

Miss Rawls had led, one up, on the first 18 of the 36-hole title match.

COOL DRINKS FOR TWO HOT GOLFERS—E. J. "Dutch" Harrison (left) and Sammy Snead who tied for the lead in the Star Open at the end of 54 holes yesterday with 202s, get together in the clubhouse after the round in an effort to cool off. Sammy first started out with a 7-Up (left hand) but was intrigued by Dutch's iced coffee and had to try one, too

Ed Stewart Hits Homer; Yank Streak Ends at 5

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Nats averted a lost weekend with the Yankees by salvaging the series finale in 11 thrill-packed innings yesterday, 2-1.

Three hours and 13 minutes after the game started, Clyde Vollmer ended it by lacing out a single to score Sam Mele with the run that interrupted the league leaders' five-game winning streak.

Vollmer's hit also saved a game which the 16,788 thought the Nats had tucked away already inasmuch as Ed Stewart's homer was the lone run of the afternoon as the Yankees squared off for the ninth inning.

The New Yorkers, however, came out of the ninth with the tying run and threatened to take the lead until Joe Haynes came in and stopped 'em dead, not only in that crisis, but for the rest of the day as well.

Haynes scored his second decision as Joe Page, ushered into the fray in the seventh inning, was tagged with his third loss after winning six in relief roles.

Threatening, threatening and threatening all during the sweltering afternoon, the Nats approached some mark for futility by stranding 17 runners. This brought their record for wastefulness against the Yanks in the last three days to 41 as they left 14 Saturday and 10 the night before.

Came the eleventh, however, the Nats stirred up more than just an idle threat, and this time the Yankee inner defense chipped in to move the Washington cause along.

Mele sped the game toward its climax by whacking out his second single. Mark Christman dumped a sacrifice bunt down the first base line which Jack Phillips juggled artfully and the Nats had runners on first and second with no outs.

As bright as it was at this point, the Nat situation got better on the next play as Ed Stewart bunted to the mound. Page looked at third for a play, but Mele was already in and when Page finally threw to first, Stewart was already across the base.

Up stepped Vollmer, who hadn't hit a ball out of the infield at this point, to lash his single over Johnny Lindell's head to wind up the excitement.

Stewart hit his sixth homer of the season over the right field fence in the fifth inning after Allie Reynolds, the Yankee starter, had already disposed of Gil Coan and Sherry Robertson.

Back in the first inning, Stewart, whose two hits paced the 12-hit Nat attack, almost drove in another run. With Sherry Robertson on first with a single and only one away, ex-Yankee Stewart tagged Reynolds' second pitch down the right field line.

Robertson crossed the plate and Stewart slid into third with an apparent triple, but Umpire Charlie Berry ruled that a fan in the right field boxes had touched the ball and Robertson was recalled to third and Stewart to second with a double.

Naturally, the Nats got neither

Giants Swamp Brooklyn, 16 to 0

Cards Whip Cincy, 8 to 1

St. Louis, July 3 (AP).—Gerald Staley hurled the St. Louis Cardinals to an 8-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds today, bringing the Redbirds back within one game of the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers. Herman Wehmeir started for the Reds and allowed three runs on four hits—one of them a homes by Joe Garagiola.

The Cardinal catcher poled his circuit blow in the third inning with the sacks empty. The Reds promptly tied the game in the fourth on singles by Hank Lowery, Walker Cooper and Virgil Stallcup.

Wehmeier walked two in the fifth and hit Garagiola with a pitched ball, but got out of the inning without runs against him. In the sixth singles by Marty Marion and Hl Rice and a triple by Ron Northey put St. Louis ahead to stay.

The Cardinals added another run at Kent Peterson's expense in the seventh and picked up four more against Peterson and Frank Fanovich in the eighth. Fanovich walked three in his one third of an inning.

Joost's 18th Homer Leads A's To 8-3 Victory Over Red Sox

Philadelphia, July 3 (AP).—Eddie Joost and Alex Kellner combined forces today to lead the Philadelphia Athletics to an 8-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox and a clean sweep of the series with the faltering Beantowners.

Kellner, lean southpaw from Tucson, Ariz., fired a six-hitter at the Red Sox for his twelfth victory of the campaign and his sixth in a row to give him the inside track in the race for rookie-of-the-year honors.

And Joost, in his greatest major league season, slammed his eighteenth home run of the year to break a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning and drive home the A's third, fourth and fifth runs.

It was routine for Kellner after that although he permitted Vern Stephens to sock his 18th homer to tie him with Joost for second place in the American League home run derby, one behind Boston's Ted Williams.

The defeat was the sixth in a row for the fifth place Red Sox who dropped to a mark of 35-34, one above the .500 log.

Kennedy Wins, Grand Slams

New York, July 3 (AP).—The New York Giants handed four Brooklyn pitchers an unmerciful shellacking today to bury the Dodgers under a 16-0 score.

Lefty Monte Kennedy spaced eight hits for his shutout and helped his own cause with a grand slam home run.

Giant bats found Brooklyn pitching a soft touch in the final of a three-game series as four Dodger pitchers were walloped for 20 hits before 36,014.

Kennedy climaxed his shutout performance with the grand slam homer which highlighted a seven-run uprising in the seventh. It was his first big league homer.

Johnny Mize had a perfect day at bat with four hits and a pair of passes. Willard Marshall drove in four runs with four hits and scored twice. Each Giant made at least one hit and scored at least one run.

The Giants batted around twice, in the first and again in the seventh.

Ten-game winner Ralph Branca, who finally lost his second decision, gave up five runs, while Rookie Morris Martin allowed nine.

Ward Captures Collegiate Golf

Ames, Iowa, July 3 (AP).—Twenty-three-year-old Harvie Ward of the University of North Carolina won the National Collegiate golf tournament today with a 5 and 4 victory over Morris Williams, jr., of the University of Texas.

The 1948 North-South amateur champion broke the match wide open by winning four straight holes from the twenty-ninth hole through the match-ending thirty-second hole.

Ward and Williams, a 19-year-old Texas junior, had fought 18 sizzling holes in the morning to a draw, each taking only one hole in their par 71 trips around the 6055-yard Iowa State College course.

Brink, Rurac Win in Tri-State

Cincinnati, July 3 (AP). — Jim Brink of Seattle and Mrs. Magda Rurac of Bucharest, Romania, today won the singles championships at the fiftieth annual Tri-State tennis tournament.

Top surprise was Mrs. Rurac's three-set victory over first-seeded Beverly Baker of Santa Monica, Calif. Mrs. Rurac won by scores of 6—4, 2—6, 6—0.

Brink, seeded second in the men's division, thumped Arnold Saul of Los Angeles for the men's crown. The scores were 6—4, 6—3, 8—4, 6—0.

Hegan's Single Wins 2d

Tribe Beats Browns Twice, 4-3

Cleveland, July 3 (AP).—A bases loaded single by Jim Hegan in the tenth inning enabled the Cleveland Indians to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 4-3, in the nightcap of a double-header today. The Tribe snuffed out a ninth Brown's rally to take the first game, also, 4-3.

The twin victory before 34,586 shoved the Indians into third place in the American League standings.

A two-base throwing error by Third Baseman Roy Sievers on Joe Gordon's infield hit put the Tribe second baseman on third with none out in the tenth. Manager Lou Boudreau and Bob Kennedy then were purposely passed by relief hurler Tom Ferrick before Hegan broke up the game.

Cliff Fannin, who allowed the Tribe 10 hits, was charged with the loss. Satchell Paige, who entered the game in the final inning was credited with the win.

Early Wynn won his fifth game against one defeat in the opener although he needed a rescue act by Paige in the ninth after Jack Graham opened the inning with a home run.

The gangling Paige set the side down in order and ended the contest by striking out pinch batter Whitey Platt.

St. Louis, July 3 (AP).—Max Lanier will get his first chance to prove he is still major league material tomorrow. The left-hander is slated to pitch for the St. Louis Cardinals against the Chicago Cubs in one of the two scheduled holiday games.

Lanier signed his contract with the Redbirds yesterday. Lanier held a record of six victories against no defeats before he jumped to the Mexican league from the Cardinals three years ago. This year he had eight triumphs and one defeat with the Quebec Provincial League.

Kiner Socks 21st as Bucs Win, 7 to 3

Chicago, July 3. (AP).—Ralph Kiner hit his twenty-first home run here today as the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Chicago Cubs, 7 to 3, before a sweltering crowd of 18,128.

Kiner's homer touched off a four-run uprising that routed Warren Hacker in the fourth inning. Vic Lombardi went the route for the Bucs to register his third triumph.

Robinson, Wertz Rap Home Runs

Detroit, July 3 (AP).—Shortstop Luke Appling got four hits and drove in three runs to lead the Chicago White Sox to an 8 to 4 decision over the Detroit Tigers today. Only 14,830 fans—smallest Sunday crowd in the history of Briggs Stadium—saw the game.

The White Sox, in winning the rubber game of the three-game series, got a dozen hits off three Tiger pitches—Starter Ted Gray and Reliefers Lou Kretlow and Freddy Hutchinson. Gray was charged with the loss, his fifth as against four wins.

Two home runs kept the Tigers in the ball game in the early innings. Catcher Aaron Robinson hit his sixth of the season in the second inning with nobody on base and Vic Wertz slammed his tenth in the fourth with George Kell on base.

Hamilton, Spencer Gain Virginia Finals

Hot Springs, Va., July 3 (AP).—Defending champion Wynsol Spencer and Jack Hamilton, both of Newport News, paraded into the finals of the thirty-fifth annual Virginia amateur championship tournament here today.

Both champions two previous years, Spencer and Hamilton will meet in the 36-hole finals over the 6714-yard casoades layout tomorrow. The initial 18-hole round will be played at 9:30 a. m. (EST), and the second session at 2:30 p. m. Spencer, who won out in 1939 and again in 1948, fought his way into the finale by disposing this morning of medalist Benno Janssen, of Charlottesville, 2 up, and this afternoon took care of George Gosey, Lynchburg city titlist, 3 and 1.

Hamilton, although not flashing his usual form, edged Pat Janssen, of Charlottesville, one up and trounced Irvin Blanchard, Portsmouth city champion, 4 and 2.

Jack took home the amateur trophy in 1942 and again in 1948. The 29-year-old Spencer had to come from behind in his matches against both Benno Janssen and Gosey to get into the title.

of them home, as this was another day when they were given to leaving runners in scoring position so often that it's becoming automatic with them.

Paul Calvert started for the Nats and pitched three-hit ball for four innings until an old blister on his pitching hand plagued him again and he had to come out in the fifth he with rookie lefthander Lloyd Hittle relieving.

Allowed 10 minutes to warm up, Hittle set the Yankees down with one hit until the ninth when they used three of their eight hits to tie the score, Billy Johnson's single driving in the tally.

Hittle was removed at this juncture and Haynes waved in. His future wasn't particularly bright, as Phillips was on second and Johnson on first with no outs.

Haynes, however, got Hank Bauer to force Phillips at third and Joe Page got him out of the jam by lining to Eddie Robinson to double Bauer off first, one of four Nat double plays.

Haynes gave up a single in the tenth, but that was all.

Joe DiMaggio's hitting streak was broken also during the day, but it took a great catch by Gil Coan in the third inning to do it and another fine play by Mele in the eighth to stop Joe the Pro.

Coan robbed DiMag of at least a double by snagging his fierce liner after a long run, saving the Nats a run as Stirnweiss was perched on first and would have scored easily. Mele made a shoe-string catch of DiMag's lazy fly to right in the eighth.

Golden Chance Takes Big Lead In Culpeper Horse Show

By Harry de Mawby

Culpeper, Va., July 3.—Paul Fouts' classy 4-year-old mare, Golden Chance, today piled up 20 points to clinch the hotly-contested jumper tri-color as the Culpeper Horse Show closed the second day of its three-day holiday event.

Golden Chance won the modified Olympia and the important $300 stake class to grab a 13-point advantage over her nearest rivals with only two more classes to go. Altogether the little mare has a record of three wins, a second and a fourth in five show races.

Stewart Felvey's Dominca jumped into the lead in the working hunter division with wins in the high score and the ladies' working hunter classes. Dominica now has 13 points.

Mrs. Amory Lawrence's bay gelding Highlander maintained her lead in the conformation hunter division, adding three points for a total of 11 by taking second place in the thoroughbred hunter event.

Body Works Wins 1st Half Title, 2 to 1

Paul (Dutch) Schaefer scored in the eighth inning off Shortstop Billy Hite's double to right to clinch a 2-1 win for Northeast Bodyworks over Bamby Bread and the first-half championship in the City Unlimited League yesterday on the South Ellipse.

Besides scoring the run that won his own ball game, Schaefer struck out 13 and allowed only six hits. Lefty Frisen was the losing pitcher.

D. C. Boats Place at Richmond

By Happy Walker

Richmond, Va., July 3. — Vic Scott, Forest Hills, N. Y., today paced the field in his Flying Scott, tallying 2125 points in the Richmond Power Boat regatta.

Scott took first in both B and C hydroplane classes, as well as second in the unlimited class and won the Carwich trophy for the boat coming nearest to breaking the 5-mile world speed record here on the James River above Bosher's Dam, under the auspices of the Virginia Power Boat Association. The annual outboard classic was sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association.

Ike Hale, hard driving Washington, D. C., hydro veteran, set the pace for Scott in the first heat, winning out in a hotly contested 5-mile grind to take 400 points. In the second heat, Hale was tossed out of his boat striking his head on the port deck, but was not injured. With some patchwork on his speed charger, The Senator, Hale plans to go to Hampton, Va., for tomorrow's outboard running.

Jimmy Baden, another Washington favorite, ironically made the races in spite of himself, getting on the road late only to be saved by the difference in standard time, nevertheless, Baden took third and fourth in the C hydros and second and third in the unlimited class for a total of 919 points. Joe Stager, Flushing, N. Y., was runner-up for high point place with a total of 1450 points.

In the A hydro class, Les Buckman, Baldwin, Long Island, took 800 points; O. O. Lackey, Trinity, N. C., 450 points; J. J. Arthur, New Bern, N. C., 300 points.

In the stock utility event, Jimmy Thompson, Yorktown, Va., nosed out Jack Mar, Falls Church, Va., and Wes Lusby, Washington, for 800 points to Marr's 600 and Lusby's 450. Hudson Moses, also of Washington, placed fourth in the unlimited hydro class, Dick Gayle, general race chairman, officiated.

Damascus, Colesville Win League Games

Norman Murray's single with the bases loaded in the eleventh inning earned a 5-4 win for Damascus over Sandy Spring yesterday in the Montgomery County League.

In other league games, Colesville bolstered its lead by a 10-8 win over Rockville, and Silver Spring beat Bethesda, 14-7.

Snead, Harrison Tie at 202

in the shade of shrubbery, autographed some cards and kept Harrison and Heafner waiting a few minutes on the tee.

In that brief respite, Snead was trying to get himself adjusted to the burning heat and the trouble he was having with his irons. He landed in traps on one and two, easy birdies holes, and on nine, where he went one over par.

It was Harrison, however, who took command on the back side. By the time they completed 13, Harrison had picked up three strokes on Snead and was leading the tournament by one shot.

Harrison gained that advantage by sinking a 4-foot putt on 11 and 18-foot putt on 13 for birdies coupled with a 5 by Snead on the par 4 twelfth hole.

It was along about there that Sammy must have decided he was snakebit. He hit his tee shot into the trees and the ball came to rest in a shallow creek. When Sammy reached the ball, a small garden snake was curiously playing around it. Some one suggested that Sammy get all his bad shots out of his system by whacking the snake but he whacked the ball instead, took a 5.

With everybody attending the tournament banked around the sloping eighteenth green to see Snead, Harrison and Heafner finish in the last match, Snead's second was over the green and he gave the crowd a thrill by coming within inches of sinking his chip shot.

Harrison did even better. He had a side hill 15-footer for a birdie three and ran it into the hole like a ground squirrel going home.

Harrison had six birds and only one bogey, at the fifteenth, where he hit his second over the green. He hit a ball out of bounds on the first hole from a bad lie on his approach shot, but he stuck his next a foot from the hole to save his par.

Snead missed five greens, most unusual for him, and was in four traps, but saved himself with that eagle on No. 4 and three birdies.

As Harrison shoots it out with Snead and Middlecoff today, the big Arkansawyer is fresh from a triumph in the Canadian Open. He had rounds of 66-67-71-67 to win with 271.

Middlecoff, almost ignored by the gallery on the first nine, caught the fancy of the fans later when word got around that the handsome National Open champion was creeping up on the early leaders.

Middlecoff continued his steady play, which has improved one stroke each day—69, then 68 and yesterday 67, tieing for the day's low.

Cary again knocked the ball on to the green hole after hole, but ran in only five birdies. The only green he missed was the first, where his approach shot hit a spectator, dropped on the edge and he got his par.

The only really long putt that sank for Middlecoff was a 40-footer on the third hole. He waited several minutes for a noisy train to rattle past on a nearby railroad track, then spanked the ball straight into the can.

Besides Middlecoff and Harrison, long-hitting Harbert had a 67, and he had the tournament's only hole-in-one. His 6 iron on the fourteenth hole, a 162-yarder, ducked into the hole, but only the players and their caddies saw it.

Everything was a little harder yesterday. The weather was hotter, the course tougher, the players were growing tired, and scores generally ran higher than the first two days. At that, 37 players were par or better for the 54 holes.

Locke Strong Favorite as 79th British Open Starts Today

Vic Ghezzi, Harmon to Miss Tourney

Sandwich, England, July 3 (U.P.)—Bobbie Locke of South Africa, who will tee off first tomorrow in the qualifying round of the seventy-ninth British Open golf championship, today became an even stronger favorite for the title when two of the leading United States threats, Claude Harmon and Vic Ghezzi, scratched from the tournament.

Locke shifted from 8-to-1 to 6-to-1 in last week's betting but he was firmly settled at 5-to-1 tonight.

Johnny Bulla of Verona, Pa., now the best American professional bet, and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, leading United States amateur hope, also moved up from 16-to-1 to 12-to-1 in the pre-tournament wagering.

Sunbaked by three weeks of almost unprecedented fair weather, the greens and fairways of both qualifying courses—the Royal Cinque Ports course at Deal and the Royal St. Georges links here—were so fast that some players had trouble getting enough bite on the ball to make it hold.

Charles Rotar, of Canton, Ohio, runner-up for the U. S. occupation Army championship in Germany, and Capt. Edwin Kingsley, of Salt Lake City, Utah, who tied for top amateur honors last year, complained that their long practice drives were skidding into the rough. Both, however, consistently shot close to par 72 on both courses last week.

With Harmon and Ghezzi out, the American contingent was reduced to four amateurs—Rotar, Stranahan, Kingsley and Bob Sweeny, the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. socialite—and three pros—Bulla, Art Clark of Huntington, W. Va., and Willie Hunter of the Riviera Country Club, Los Angeles.

Bill Bennings Says:

At Charles Town.

DEAR FOLKS:

There's an old turf saying, "horses for courses," meaning of course, that certain thoroughbreds prefer certain tracks. Well, the sire Bull Moose stands on the Dr. H. B. Langdon farm on the outskirts of this town. His sons and daughters, raised in this mountain air, are almost unbeatable at this oval. No matter what the name, almost invariably, if it contains "Moose," many fans buy a ticket. A partial list of the sire's children includes Great Beaming, Belle, Roving, Big, Bernie Trigger, Some, G.I., Frank's, Nancy's and Roger's. The press box wit says there's one with every first name except Hanover. Big holiday card. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Sgt. Mitchell Pistol Champ

Quantico, Va., July 3.—Individual honors in the National Rifle Association's Middle Atlantic Regional Pistol Championships went to M/Sergt. Thomas R. Mitchell of the Marine Corps School's pistol team in today's shooting.

Mitchell won the .38-aliber center slow fire match with 191 and the .38-caliber grand aggregate with 872.

Herman Hunter of the New York City Police Department won the timed fire event and Mark Walsh, also of the New York City Police, won the rapid fire match in the center fire matches.

Sergt. Huelet Benner of the Eighty-second Airborne Division won the National match course event with 293.

In Saturday's shooting the Marine Corps School's pistol team won the .22-caliber team match with the Washington, D. C. Twelfth Preinct team coming in for second place with a score of 1144, only five points short of the Quantico mark.

Other winners in the .22 caliber matches were Roy D. Marshall of Washington, D. C. Police Department, with 288 in the slow fire match.

Reallocation Suit Over Job Sets Off Fireworks at GAO

Fireworks of a different variety than today's are popping at the General Accounting Office. The suit filed by F. Glenn Moseley, a GAO claims examiner, set them off. Moseley resorted to the rarely used action to force his office to reallocate his job to a P-4, as ordered by the Civil Service Commission.

The refusal of GAO to comply with Civil Service directions is bad enough, especially since GAO officials agreed that Moseley's and like jobs should be given the professional rating.

But the real fireworks in the case is a statement by a top-ranking GAO personnel official which is reported to have been made to Moseley and a score of his colleagues. Notes on the statement are in the hands of several members of Congress, and Attorneys S. R. Carter and Edward P. Felker, who filed the legal action in District Court here. The official is accused of this undiplomatic and unwarranted language:

That I resent the manner in which this case has been presented . . . This appeal hurts my pride and it is a reflection on my job . . . You must cooperate with me or get out—or I will get you out—I don't care who is responsible. If I find out I will prefer charges and get them out. Veteran or non-veteran, I will get them out. My percentage of wins is high.

That's the sort of irresponsible talk—the use of a verbal blackjack—that smacks of the dark ages. It's the kind of thing that leads to all sorts of restrictive laws, rules, and regulations and has tied our Government in red tape. It's a reflection on all personnel offices in Government. But only a pipsqueak would do it.

Lindsey Warren, the GAO chief, is a tough but fair-minded boss. It's a cinch he wouldn't condone such conduct for a moment. But a score of his employes are ready to go to court to swear the above is only a part of what the personnel bigwig had to say.

CREED: The Federal Personnel Council in Philadelphia has staged a worthy and successful project. It called on Government employes in that area to submit a creed for Federal workers. The winner was Theodore S. Litwin of Social Security, who was given a $50 saving bond. His creed:

"Public Service is an honor and a privilege. It requires the fullest measure of personal integrity and devotion. There can be no greater satisfaction than service in the Government of free man. I do hereby pledge myself to be worthy of that great trust and confidence."

It would be good for all of us to adopt it.

STORY: A House bill carries this high-faluting language:

"Efficiency is the degree of performance in which each function or feature is an element of the position, which when computed shows the composite efficiency of that element, and all elements in the position are correlated and coordinated so as to reflect the composite degree of performance of the position in its entirety. This constitutes the efficiency rating of the officer occupying the position."

Alice Miller has retired from the Army's plans and operations staff after 31 years of service. She was one of the few women in top-secret Army jobs during the war . . . Paul L. Howard, a battery expert, has joined the staff at the Bureau of Standards . . . Several Senators are carefully reading everything Leland Olds ever wrote. They may use Olds' ancient writings to oppose him for renomination to the Federal Power Commission.

FOREIGN SERVICE: It seems to have been overlooked in the holiday rush, but the 6000 Foreign Service employes will get $330 retroactive pay raises. The Foreign Service people were provided for in the bill that gave District employes the same pay boost.

Boy, 2, Swallows Cup Of Cleaning Bleach

James Davis, 2, was admitted to Gallinger Hospital after swallowing a cupful of strong cleaning bleach in the kitchen of his home, 1306 4th st. sw., while his mother, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Davis, was in another room.

His condition was said to be fair.

Seemed Like a Ghost Town

It Was Hot, Quiet, Sleepy For Those Who Stayed Here

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

CITY SWIMMING HOLE—Donald Stephenson, 1309 H st. nw., doesn't have to go to any beach for his Fourth of July outing. He knows a watering trough at 13th st. and New York ave., where the water runs cool and deep—at least to a 7-year-old. And, ice cream cone in hand, he sought it out yesterday

Finding Ways to Duck Soaring Temperature Was Major Activity

Washington seemed a sleeping city yesterday, a somnolent Southern town drowsing in the glare of a seething sun.

Only the occasional sharp bang of an illegal firecracker marred the Sunday quiet—a feeble reminder of the Fourth of July. The city's broad avenues were virtually deserted.

In Rock Creek Park, visitors appeared in smaller number than on other summer Sabbaths. The sunbathers at "Scott's Beach," those hard devotees of vanity, were scattered figures on the grassy slopes—perhaps half as many as usual.

It was hot yesterday; a warm 72 degrees at 6:05 a. m. for the low temperature; a perspiring 84 at noon; and, beneath a glassy, cloudfree sky, a torrid 91 at 4:55 p. m. The temperature had dropped an hour later, it was 90 degrees at 6 p. m. Humidity then was the day's low at 46.

More Heat Today

More of the same is expected today. The weatherman predicted a low temperature of 72, climbing to 92 in the afternoon. Will it rain? No, he said.

Thousands of the citizens who normally would have been driving here and there over the city yesterday—visiting the Zoo, wading in Rock Creek, inspecting the monuments — were celebrating the Fourth of July away from town.

One such Washingtonian was Harry S. Truman, who spent the day cruising on Chesapeake Bay in the presidential yacht Williamsburg. The weather, radioed the yacht, was "ideal."

Not so, decided one energetic citizen who had to stay here. But 7-year-old Donald Stephenson of 1309 H st. nw., came up with a unique solution to the heat.

Kids Find Ways

He dunked himself in an old horse trough near his home, to the delight (and possibly envy) of passersby.

There were the three Battle youngsters, too—Lois, 12; Helene, 10, and Frances Elizabeth, 5. They set up a lemonade stand at 13th and H nw. and hauled in $1.10 profit in the first half hour. That made the heat more bearable.

Over at "Scott's Beach," off 21st and P sts. nw., Miss Betty Felix, 21, a State Department secretary who lives at 2013 Massachusetts ave. nw., took time out from sunbathing for a short wade in Rock Creek.

Sergeant Helps Her

Helping her solicitously over the rough spots was Sergt. Charles MacKenzie, 27, 1621 Rhode Island ave. nw. MacKenzie, who is stationed at the Pentagon, said the heat had driven him to seek "a little fresh air."

Bathing-suited Miss Felix reported that she will spend today at a real beach, that yesterday's visit to Scott's Beach was the best way she could think of to spend her time.

Most Washingtonians, however, seemed content to relax in their homes. Even if it was the holiday weekend, it was too hot to do much moving about.

Meehean to Speak

O. Lloyd Meehean, chief of the Wild Life Service's game and fish hatcheries division, is slated to speak on "Sport Fishing" at a luncheon of the Civitan Club at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Prohibition Won't Be Tried Again, Temperance Official Tells Adventists

National prohibition will never be tried again in this country because "it is impossible to enforce," Elder Charles S. Longacre, Seventh-Day Adventist minister and associate secretary of the American Temperance Society, said yesterday.

He described local option as the more effective weapon against liquor.

He spoke before 2000 at the closing session of the 10-day camp meeting of the Seventh-day Adventists' Potomac Conference at Sligo Church in Takoma Park.

"Impossible" to Enforce

"National prohibition will never be tried again," he said. "It is impossible to enforce it upon a wet community dependent upon wet officials to enforce dry laws."

"Local option," he said, "is making prohibition effective where it is judicially, consistently and persistently applied. The drys as a rule have profited by their past mistakes and are making stepping stones out of past defeats."

Pointing out that society condemns and hangs murderers but murder still occurs, Elder Longacre said that "man cannot by his own efforts create a perfect world as long as human nature remains what it is in its carnal state."

"Human legislation is necessary to protect society against evildoers to minimize the evil effects of liquor. But it is impossible to eradicate all evil and crime from this present evil world by force of law and police power, no matter how good and efficient they may be."

He advocated the spiritual rebirth of the drinker himself as the ultimate solution of the liquor problem.

Last year's liquor bill in the United States, he said, was $9,600,000,000.

Elder Francis D. Nichol, editor of the Review and Herald, Adventist church paper, said that the present progress of world events has been close to the course prophesied by the Adventist Church and that "people no longer laugh at the Adventist description of what is coming."

The Potomac Conference, which sponsored the camp meeting, includes Adventist churches in Maryland, the District of Columbia and Virginia.

Tenant Shot In Rent Row Still Critical

Joseph Manuel Sosa, 35, who was shot Saturday in a landlord-tenant dispute, was still in critical condition yesterday at Casualty Hospital from a bullet wound through the chest.

His landlord, William Roy McIlrath, 64, 460 H st. nw., was in jail attempting to raise $10,000 bond. He was charged with assault with intent to kill and two counts of assault with a dangerous weapon.

The dispute, police said, took place at the H st. address where Sosa, a driver for Government Services, Inc., and his wife, had rented rooms. The argument came, police said, over Sosa's alleged refusal to pay rent. His wife, Mrs. Mary Sosa, said the refusal was based on instructions of District Rent Control authorities. McIlrath previously asked police aid to stop his tenants from skipping.

In the argument, police said, Mrs. Sosa, who is 28, and her sister, Mrs. Sarah Jane Hawkins, 29, were injured by blows on the head. They were treated at Casualty Hospital and released.

The three children of Sosa are being cared for temporarily by the Children's Aid Society, Inc., an independent Washington group.

The Washington Post incorrectly stated yesterday the youngsters were being cared for by the Child Welfare Society, an organization responsible for the Child Welfare Department of Childrens Hospital.

Koepfle Precedes Ritual Team to Cleveland

Past Exalted Ruler Leo G. Koepfle, manager of the Silver Spring (Md.) Elks ritual team, will leave today by plane for Cleveland, Ohio, to make final arrangements for the local team's entry in the Grand Lodge convention contest.

Members of the team who will join him there are: E. Brooks Perring, exalted ruler; Troy L. Waldrop, past exalted ruler, and C. Robert Gray, C. Allen Davis, Merrill Hobbs, Stedman Prescott, jr., and Dr. J. K. Fangmeyer.

Man Found Dead In Channel After Suicide Attempt

A 72-year-old man was drowned in the Washington Channel yesterday, 10 days after he failed to kill himself by slashing his wrists and chest with a razor blade.

The dead man is John C. Collins, jr., of no fixed address, whose body was recovered by harbor police near 7th st. and Maine ave. sw., at 6 p. m.

Before Collins was released from Gallinger Hospital 10 days ago, he told police investigators he was old and tired of living. He had been sporadically employed as a clerk in small hotels.

Detective Sergt. Robert Kirby said Collins first attempted suicide at 414 6th st. nw.

Yesterday his body was found floating in the channel by Robert Henderson, 15, 1001 6th st. sw., who notified police. His body was identified at the morgue by a friend, John McQuade, 509 E st. nw.

Policeman Foils Woman's Leap From Key Bridge

A 33-year-old woman was under observation at Gallinger Hospital yesterday after an attempted suicide leap that was frustrated by a Seventh Precinct policeman on Key Bridge Saturday night.

The woman, who told police she planned suicide because she had been advised she had a brain tumor, was halted at the railing of the bridge by Pvt. James Smith, who said he suspected her intent when he saw her peering over the railing into the Potomac River below. Smith, who was driving a patrol wagon, pulled to the curb and grabbed her.

Smith said he found a note, addressed to the woman's mother, in the pocket of her dress, saying she planned to end her life because of the brain malady.

Boy, 2, Burned at Picnic

David B. Klafter, 2, son of Ira Klafter, of 1203 Trenton st. se., suffered second degree burns of hands and knees yesterday when he stumbled and fell into a picnic fire near Fort Washington, Md. He was taken to Providence Hospital.

ent type will be exemplified by the "Prospector's Dream," the "Girdle of Venus," and "Screaming Dragons Breathing Fire."

The concert by the Navy and Marine bands will open the program, followed by a procession of colors borne by local veterans and patriotic society members. A squadron of District Air National Guard aircraft, the 121st Fighter Group, known as the "White House Squadron," will fly over in various formations during the colors event. The squadron will be led by Col. Willard W. Milliken.

Some 20,000 reserved chairs have been provided for the event. Tickets for these, at $1 for adults and 60 cents for children, may be purchased all day today at five booths on the Monument Grounds. Admission is free for the thousands who will stand or sit on the slope.

No parking will be allowed on the grounds, in the Ellipse and on Constitution ave. between 15th and 17th sts. Police Inspector Arthur E. Miller and Capt. Mark Raspberry of the Park Police have urged use of public transportation.

A scene from Paul Green's historical drama, "The Common Glory," now in its third full season at Williamsburg, Va., will be presented as a special feature this years. The scene deals with the writing of the Declaration of Independence. A special prologue for this showing has been written.

The role of narrator will be played by Warner Schreiner, Washington native and a resident of Arlington, who will return to his home for the occasion from Williamsburg, where he is playing the role regularly.

General Devers, commanding general of the Army Field Forces, will give the major address. Master of ceremonies will be Eddie Gallaher, well-known WTOP broadcaster.

Track and field meets, swimming and wading-pool pageants and numerous other events are sponsored for today at seven locations by the District Recreation Department, in cooperation with businessmen of the area and the Washington Independence Day Committee.

The schedule for these playground activities is: Georgetown, 33d and Q sts. nw., 9 a. m. to 10 p. m.; Palisades, Potomac ave. and Weaver pl. nw., 9 a. m. to 11:30 p. m; Takoma, 4th and Van Buren sts. nw., 10 a. m. to 11 p. m.; Langdon, 18th and Franklin sts. ne., 10 a. m to 10 p. m.; Taft, 18th and Perry sts. ne., 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., and Banneker, 2500 Georgia ave. nw., 4:30 p. m. to 8 p. m.

At Arlington National Cemetery, the first sentry to stand guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier will place a memorial wreath there at an 11 a. m. ceremony. He is Conley E. Almany of Bristol, Tenn., a World War I veteran.

An address will be given by Percy J. Trevethan of Milwaukee, executive secretary of the Goodwill Industries of America. World War II veterans employed by the rehabilitation workshop group will form an honor unit to accompany a military honor guard.

The Potomac River Naval Command is displaying four Navy vessels at the Naval Gun Factory today—a rocket-launching ship, a destroyer, an LST and a patrol craft. The public may see them between 1 and 4:30 p. m. The gun factory itself will be open to visitors from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. In addition, a destroyer will be on public display at the foot of Franklin st. at the naval torpedo plant in Alexandria, Va.

Filipinos to Celebrate

The traditional Fourth of July program of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants at the Old Union Engine House at 19th and H sts. nw., set for 11 a. m., will include an address by Representative Ford (R., Mich.). The oldsters' patriotic ceremonies will be climaxed by the ringing of the old fire bell at noon and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

A third—rather than a 173d—Independence Day will be celebrated by the Filipino community of Washington and members of the Philippine Embassy. Their independence from the United States will be marked by a 5:30 p. m. reception at the residence of Ambassador J. M. Elizalde and a dance at the National Press Club auditorium at 9 p. m.

The accent will be on youth in several of the suburban area Fourth of July festivities.

In Magruder Park, Hyattsville, Prince Georges County citizens will start their celebration with races, contests and other athletic events at 1 p. m. and end up with a fireworks display at 9 p. m.

Gov. William Preston Lane of Maryland is expected to attend the evening exercises at 8 p. m. in the park where Senator Tydings (D., Md.) will be principal speaker.

Five Bands to March

Five bands will march in a parade from the University of Maryland to the park, beginning at 5 p. m. The units are the United States Air Force Bandsmen's School, Quantico Marine Base, 356th Army (Fort Belvoir), Greenbelt Community, and Prince Georges County School bands. Fort McNair personnel, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls, veterans' groups and members of the county Civil Air Patrol will be among the marchers.

The Quantico Band will play for the evening program, which includes a massing of the colors and salutes by Boy Scouts from several county troops, recitations and vocal selections. A joint invocation will be given by clergymen of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths.

The celebration is being conducted by a committee headed by Hiram L. Lawrence, Hyattsville councilman. Funds for expenses came from local businessmen and from house-to-house solicitation.

Montgomery County's Independence Day program will begin at 2 p. m. with a two-hour model airplane show-contest and end with fireworks at 8:30 p. m. in Meadowbrook Recreation Center, between Silver Spring and Bethesda.

Baseball Game Planned

Following the model show, games and contests for youngsters, including a baseball game, will continue until the evening fireworks, which are expected to attract some 10,000 persons.

The Elks Band of Silver Spring will play on the grounds from 3 to 3:30 p. m. and the Kiwanis Boys Band will play from 5 to 5:30 p. m. The Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School orchestra will entertain in the evening from 8:15 until the start of the fireworks.

The celebration is being sponsored by the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce, the Silver Spring Board of Trade, Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions Clubs of both Bethesda and Silver Spring, and the Civitan Club of Bethesda.

At Hillandale, also in Montgomery County, an all-day celebration sponsored by the Hillandale Citizens Association will begin with a children's parade at 10:30 a. m. from the Dr. Henry Welch home on Overlook dr. to the Recreation Center.

A drill on horseback will be staged by youngsters of the Hillandale Saddle Club at the Recreation Center at about 11:30 a. m. A patriotic program follows at noon, with the Girl Scouts participating and the Rev. Henry C. Parkman giving the invocation.

In the afternoon, a father and son baseball game will be held at the Xaverian Brothers' Seminary field. This will be followed by a children's swimming meet at 4 p. m. at the Welch pool, followed by general swimming and a picnic at 5 p. m.

Greenbelt, Md., which began its Independence Day celebration Saturday and continued yesterday with games and other events, will stage an all-day affair today, beginning with a parade at 10:30 a. m.

Softball Game Set

The parade will continue until 1 p. m., winding up with a boys' and girls' "parade on wheels" contest. The afternoon program will include contests and races of all kinds. A softball game is scheduled for 8 p. m., followed by fireworks and square dancing until midnight.

In Centerville, Fairfax County, Va., supporters of John S. Battle, candidate for Governor, will turn their Fourth of July into "battle for Governor" day, with speeches by Representative Smith (D., Va.) and State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, a carnival and baseball game and a dance.

Sailor Death Clew Sought In Holdup At Beltsville

Two Hitchhikers Robbed, Dumped; Blood in Stolen Car Is Same as Little's

County, State and Federal authorities last night were investigating the holdup of two hitch-hikers at Beltsville in the hope it might uncover a clew to the identity of the slayers of a sailor near Rockville, Md., Friday.

In addition, search was being made for another sailor, reported seen with a man resembling the murdered seaman, John J. Little, 18, several hours before Little's body was found alongside a tavern poolroom 1½ miles north of Rockville.

Circumstances Similar

Circumstances surrounding the robbery of the hitchhikers bore a resemblance to the police version of the Little robbery-murder.

The hitchers were picked up by two men in an auto in Baltimore. When the car reached Beltsville at about 1:30 a. m., according to police, the "benefactors" turned on the riders, robbed them and left them along the roadway.

The hitchhikers quoted the holdup men as boasting that another victim had to be "slugged" when he wouldn't "cooperate."

Police have theorized that Little was slain by two men after being picked up in a stolen car.

Bloodstains in the car, which was recovered resting on a seawall between Constitution and New Hampshire aves., its front end submerged in the Potomac, have been found to match Little's blood type.

Little died from a fractured skull, the result of a "brutal beating" Montgomery County Medical Examiner F. J. Broschart said. Broschart reported that "apparently a blunt instrument was used to bash him three times on the back of the head and once on each side of the head."

The location of the injuries led police to believe Little was struck by someone seated in the rear of the vehicle after he had solicited a ride, and his body dragged from the car. The sailor's wallet was missing when the body was found, police said.

Intelligence officers of the Potomac River Naval Command said Little had taken a bus to Washington from the Naval Air Station at Oceana on Friday en route to visit relatives at Loretto, Pa. They said he was believed to have had about $50.

One of those sought for the Beltsville crime was described as 21 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, 145 pounds, blond, with a pug nose. The other was said to be 26, 5 feet 7 inches tall, wearing two-tone tan shoes and having a swarthy complexion.

Widow, 67, Dies Of Heart Attack While Wading

A 67-year-old Lanham, Md., widow died of a heart attack yesterday afternoon while wading at Beverley Beach.

Anne Arundel County police said Mrs. Nellie Ainge was dragged from the water by a lifeguard, who saw her collapse as she was wading a short distance from the shore.

She was pronounced dead a short time later by Dr. John Claffy, county medical examiner, who said he would issue a certificate of death by natural causes.

Police said they understood Mrs. Ainge's only relative was a daughter in New Jersey.

Detective Solves Auto Theft Series

Putting two and two together, Precinct Detective Joe Loughrin came up with "18" yesterday to solve a series of Northeast section auto thefts and book a youth on charges of housebreaking and grand larceny.

Investigating a break-in and theft of an automobile from Dunn Motor Sales Co., 2410 Bladensburg rd. ne., on June 27, police found fingerprints on a glass desk top. The prints checked with none on file. The stolen car, however, was found parked a short distance away from the home of Richard M. Hodgson, 2401 22d st. ne., a parolee from National Training School, who had been under surveillance in other auto thefts.

Putting his 'twos' together Detective Loughrin learned that Hodson had turned 18 on June 11. He invited Hodgson in and, since the youth was now 18, took his fingerprints. The prints matched those found on the desk top. Hodgson admitted the car theft from the Dunn concern, police said, and four other auto thefts.

$50 Doze at Wheel

Property at four houses in two blocks of Franklin st. ne., was damaged at 4 a. m. yesterday, when a car operated by Robert Lee Brown, 36, 701 Upshur st. nw., went out of control and leaped the sidewalk.

Brown was charged with failing to give full time and attention, police said, after his car drove over the sidewalk on to the lawn at 55 Franklin st., smashed through shrubbery at 53, collided with the corner of 51, and finally came to a stop near No. 49.

Police said Brown dozed off. He posted $50 collateral and elected to forfeit.

Fire Engine Hits Car

Fire Engine No. 27 and a car operated by Rollin Wood, 28, of 612 K st. ne., collided at Deane and Minnesota aves. ne., yesterday, but only $1 damage was reported to each vehicle.

Engine 27 was driven by Pvt. John H. Robinson, 31, of 231 10th st. se., en route to a freight car hot box at Kenilworth ave. and Lane pl. ne.

Hot Motor Cooled Off

An electric motor in the basement of the Harrington Hotel, 12th and E sts. nw., got smoking hot yesterday afternoon. Firemen who quickly cooled the motor off said it caused "very little damage."

D. C. Team Wins Mixed Pair Title

By Marian H. Barre

Baltimore, July 3 (Spl.).—District bridge players were one up on their Baltimore rivals today when Mrs. Freda Bentley and Lew Levinson, both of Washington, won the mixed pair championship in the Baltimore-Washington tourney now in session at the Hotel Emerson here.

The match was a smashing victory for the Capitalites who took four out of six honor positions. Mrs. R. H. Skinner and Leroy Thurtell were runners up, only 3½ points under the champions. Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Steinberg finished fourth and Mrs. D. H. Mott and Edgar Perkins were sixth.

A match for open pairs, major event of the tournament, was still in play late tonight. Defenders of the title are Fred L. Karpin, District luminary who is author of the "Point Count Bidding System," and J. J. Parish of Centralia, Ill.

The tournament ends today with a match for teams of four, Baltimore defending. Play begins at 12:30 p. m., the final session being called for 6 p. m.

Harry G. Pumphrey

Funeral services for Harry Gilbert Pumphrey, 50, native of Upper Marlboro, who died there of a heart attack Saturday, will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the Ritchie Bros. funeral home in Upper Marlboro. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Pumphrey was employed by the Prince Georges County Commissioners to drive county prisoners to and from work details.

He is survived by his wife, the former Cicily Kassick; two brothers, Stanley P. Pumphrey and Sidney R. Pumphrey, and three sisters, Mrs. Winifred Armstrong, Mrs. Nellie Staldings and Mrs. Grace Waggoner.

Passengers Treated Here Tell Of Train Wreck in Maryland

Seven passengers on the Baltimore & Ohio's Diplomat when the crack train collided with a stalled livestock train in Maryland yesterday morning were given additional treatment upon arrival here last night.

The group, all adults, were among approximately 25 passengers to suffer contusions, bruises and abrasions in the wreck that cost the lives of two trainmen. Doctors also treated the injured at the scene.

The passengers treated at Union Station all said they were thankful for their "narrow escape." They included:

Mrs. W. D. Foster, 906 M st. nw.

Miss Gertrude A. Schellbase, 1736 Columbia rd. nw.

Visiting Sister in Arlington

Miss Dorothy Burlison of Independence, Mo., visiting a sister, Mrs. A. G. Conover, 5314 2d st N., Arlington.

Mr. and Mrs. John Oheim of St. Louis, coming to Washington on vacation.

J. B. McCartney, Grafton, W. Va., visiting his daughters, Mrs. Ethel Trimble and Audrey McCarthy, both of 21 8th st. ne.

James Arthur Turner of St. Louis, also here to visit relatives.

According to Conductor L. W. Loose, there were 37 passengers bound for Washington and 28 bound for other points in the East.

Describing the mountain wreck, Mrs. Foster said the engine was thrown against a bank alongside the tracks, which held it.

"If it had fallen to the other side," she said, "I think it would have taken the cars down with it and there would have been more killed. The engine was just mashed flat."

Mrs. Foster said she was sitting on a couch with two other women when "all of a sudden I was thrown on my face. All three of us were on the floor.

"I think I was knocked out for a moment. Then I heard one woman hollering, 'Oh my baby, my baby!' Fortunately, she had not brought the baby into the lounge with her, and it was all right."

The air conditioning went off with the wreck. The coffee urn hurtled from the galley into the diner, where breakfast was about to be served, and trainmen decided it would be a hazard to use it or to cook on the stove. Passengers said they were served sandwiches. Some said they also were served milk.

Miss Schellhase said the first jolt "knocked me against the steel frame of the seat ahead. Then a second jolt, and I hit the other side of my head on the seat." She said the wreck sent small bags and packages flying down from the baggage rack, but not her heavy suitcase.

Miss Burlison said she was thrown to the floor of the women's lounge by the jolts, bruising her side. She said she also was splashed by water from the washbowl.

McCartney said he felt a preliminary jerk but did not think anything of it. Then a moment later he was thrown against the seat in front of him, hitting his head.

Turner said he was washing his face and hands when he was thrown to the floor. "At first I thought I had broken my back," he said.

The train, due in Washington at 12:10 p. m. (EDST) was 4½ hours late. The cars were brought here by an emergency locomotive.

The injured group was examined in the Union Station first-aid room by Dr. R. N. Manganaro of the B. & O. emergency service.

Dr. Minnie D. Smith

Funeral services for Dr. Minnie D. Smith, 63, veteran Washington chiropractor, who died Friday at her home, 1439 R st. nw., after a week's illness, will be held at 11:30 a. m., Tuesday, at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be private.

Dr. Smith, who established her practice here in 1914, was the wife of Dr. Ray P. Smith, also a chiropractor who has practiced here for 30 years and who survives her. Their offices were at their home.

Mrs. Smith was a native of Newark Valley, N. Y., and attended high school there. She came to Washington in 1908, and was later graduated from the National School of Chiropractices in Chicago.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Katherine E. Hall, of 1248 Irving st. nw., and Miss Mary T. Feeney, of Meridian pl. nw.

Watergate Opens Season

Barber of Seville was heard in its original form, as Miss Swarthout turned on a shower of coloratura. Her facility was as fine as her understanding of the aria. But airplanes in both arias were cruel in their frequent racket, and a motorboat ruined the effect of the Rossini.

After intermission the third movement from Tschaikowsky's sixth symphony was given in perfect precision. Next came the satire of William Walton's sophisticated slapstick Facade suite. This is brittle but clever. Its humor and performance won it a big hand. Miss Swarthout in songs from "South Pacific" sounded out of character. Bali-Hai is not yet in her voice, and really shouldn't be. It's not good enough for her.

Encores by Poulenc, John Jacob Niles, and Bizet were her best singing of the evening which ended with the Carousel Waltz and the Stars and Stripes Forever. The orchestra is the best summer combination ever heard here. Programs and guest stars are brilliant. It looks like a great month, come Sundays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Wednesday: Earl Wild in the Grieg Piano Concerto.

Isobel Baillie Sings Classics in Top Form

Yesterday afternoon Isobel Baillie, English soprano, sang a recital in Washington Cathedral.

The noted singer was at the top of form. Her voice, known in this country almost entirely by her great phonographic recordings was beautiful at every moment. Accompanied by Paul Calloway, organist and choirmaster of the cathedral, Miss Baillie drew largely upon the classic repertoire for which she is so rightly celeNothing we have heard in seaoNthing we have heard in seasons surpassed her voicing of Bach's "Flocks in Pastures Green Abiding." Gentle thrills, heavenly soft entrances on high tones, and superb musicianship made this one of the great moments in the day.

Thrilling in a completely different way was the extrovert glory of Handel's "Let the Bright Seraphim." Lloyd Geisler, first trumpet of the National Symphony played the brilliant obbligato and the trio of artists stormed musical heaven with their combined splendor. Baillie knows every nuance of the great classic composers and sings them with unceasing rapture. Mood, style, color, thorough knowledge are the ingredients of her work. We have no parallel in this country for such singing.

In Elgar's oratorio, The Kingdom, there is a soprano solo, "The Sun Goeth own." This Isobel Baillie sang in warmest romantic manner. Her profound feeling for text and the warmth of the music made this another rapturous moment.

Paul Callaway not only aided the singer's efforts with perfect understanding and flexibility, but suggested with his great instrument all the sound and texture implicit in the accompaniments. To this he added baroque grandeur in the St. Anne Prelude of Bach and the best kind of modern organ repertoire in works of Homer Keller and Danel Pinkham.

Keller's Fantasy is sensitively effective. His fugue is a masterpiece in form and suitability to the organ. Pinkham comes off best in his brief introduction and fine closing toccata. An epitaph intervening between the two seems episodic and unconvincing.

It was one of the finest concerts of any year and we must hope to hear Isobel Baillie again while she is visiting our country and city.

Ralph Levi Watts

State College, Pa., July 3 (AP).—Ralph Levi Watts, 80, dean emeritus of the Pennsylvania State College's School of Agriculture, died last night.

John E. Voll, Retired Printer For U. S., Dies

T. E. Blake, Architect, Dies at 79

Greenwich, Conn., July 3 (NYHTNS).—Theodore E. Blake, 79, noted architect and one of the designers of the Senate and House office buildings in Washington, died today in Greenwich Hospital. He lived in Greenwich, and had his offices in New York.

In April, 1948, Mr. Blake was elected an associate member of the National Academy of Design — an honor that capped a career in architecture dating back to 1888. In that career Mr. Blake helped design the Manhattan Bridge, once the world's greatest suspension span, and the New York Public Library building.

Mr. Blake was born in Brooklyn in 1869, although his family had lived in Greenwich for more than 200 years. He attended the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, and in 1892 he went to Paris to study at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts, and returned in 1895 to become an associate architect with Carrere & Hastings. He remained with that firm until 1927, when he began practicing independently.

He was a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, and a member of the Beaux-Arts Institute of Design. He was a member of the Century Association, the St. Nicholas Society, the Coffee House Club, the Field Club of Greenwich, and the Cosmos Club of Washington.

Surviving are a sister, Miss Katharine V. B. Blake, and a brother, Edward M. Blake.

Walter Duncan Dies; Federal Works Official

Walter H. Duncan, 64, Federal Works Agency official and active Mason, died Friday at Nags Head, N. C., of a heart attack.

He was returning to Washington from a two-month vacation at Myrtle Beach, S. C., at the time.

Mr. Duncan, was deputy commissioner of the Bureau of Community Facilities for the FWA, a post he had held about four years.

Born in Sommerville, Mass., he was raised in Nova Scotia, went to Burdette Business College in Lynn, Mass., and later lived in California.

He owned a small bank in Loyalton, Calif., served as mayor and treasurer of the town from 1913 to 1919, and managed a small creamery and a Buick agency there in addition.

In 1933 he became State auditor for the Civil Works Administration in Reno, Nev., then joined the WPA in 1935 as director of finance in Nevada.

He came to Washington in the late 1930's, serving about 3 years as director of the Administrative Budget Section of the WPA. He helped in liquidation of the WPA in 1944, then joined the Office of Budget and Administrative Planning. He took on his most recent position with the FWA in December, 1945.

He was a member of the Royal Arch Masons in Reno, Nev., the Knights Templar, the California State Society, the Knights of Pythias and Rotary Club. His Washington affiliations included the Shrine and Sphinx Club.

Mr. Duncan, whose home was at 601 19th st. nw., leaves his wife, Mrs. Ethel Atkinson Duncan, of Reno, Nev.; a son Robert, of Pittsburgh, and a daughter, Mrs. orotDhy Johnson, of Sacramento, Calif.

Alphonsus J. Donohue

Alphonsus J. Donahue, 65, industrialist and church and civic leader, died Saturday at his home in Stamford, Conn., after a long illness, according to word received here yesterday.

Mr. Donahue, a native of New York and veteran of World War I, was named this year as a member of President Truman's committee on equality of treatment and opportunity in the armed forces. A year ago he was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws by Georgetown University.

In recent years, Mr. Donahue has headed a number of large industrial concerns, his principal interest being in manufacturing and marketing of slide fasteners.

Funeral services will be at 11 a. m. Tuesday at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Stamford. Burial will be at Valhalla, N. Y.

Library Exhibits Jefferson's Letter

One of the last letters Thomas Jefferson wrote before his death on July 4, 1826, is on exhibit this week at the Library of Congress.

The letter, addressed to Roger C. Weightman as Mayor of Washington, contains Jefferson's regret that because of poor health he would not be able to attend the City of Washington's fiftieth celebration of Independence Day.

Written From Monticello

Dated June 24, 1826, at his home, Monticello, Jefferson's letter reads:

"Respected Sir: The kind invitation I received from you, on the part of the citizens of the City of Washington to be present with them at their celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of American Independence, as one of the surviving signers of an instrument pregnant with our own and the fate of the world, is most flattering to myself and heightened by the honorable accompaniment proposed for the comfort of such a journey.

"It adds sensibly to the sufferings of sickness, to be deprived by it of a personal participation in the rejoicings of that day; but acquiescence is a duty under circumstances not placed among those we are permitted to control. I should, indeed, with pecular delight have met and exchanged their congratulations, personally, with the small band, the remnant of that host of worthies who joined with us, on that day, in the bold and doubtful election we were to make for our country, between submission and the sword; and to have enjoyed with them the consolatory fact that our fellow citizens, after half a century of experience and prosperity, continue to approve the choice we made.

Signal to Burst Chains

"May it be to the world, what I believe it will be (to some parts sooner, to others later, but finally to all), the signal of arousing men to burst the chains under which monkish ignorance and superstition had persuaded them to bind themselves, and to assure the blessings and security of self-government.

"The form which we have substituted restores the free rights to the unsubdued exercise of reason and freedom of opinion. All eyes are opened or opening to the rights of men. The general spread of the lights of science has already laid open to every view the palpable truth, that the mass of mankind has not been born with saddles on their backs, nor a favoured few, booted and spurred, ready to ride them legitimately by the grace of God.

"These are grounds of hope for others and for ourselves. Let the annual return of this day forever refresh our recollection of these rights, and an undiminished devotion to them.

"I will ask permission here to express the pleasure with which I should have met my ancient neighbors of the city of Washington and its vicinities, with whom I passed so many years of a pleasing social intercourse — an intercourse which so much relieved the anxieties of the public cares, and left impressions so deeply engraved in my affections, as never to be forgotten. With my regret that ill health forbids me the gratification of an acceptance, be pleased to receive for yourself, and those for whom you write the assurance of my highest respect and friendly attachments."

Thomas Jefferson.

Williamsburg To Hear Smith

Williamsburg, Va., July 3 (Spl.). Lieut. Gen. Bedell Smith, commanding general of the First Army and former Ambassador to Russia, will formally open an eighteenth century arsenal here Monday to the accompainment of jet planes and Colonial cannon.

General Smith will deliver the principal address during the morning, July 4 ceremonies and will turn over the keys to unlock the Colonial Magazine and Guardhouse—the first new exhibition unit of Colonial Williamsburg since before the war.

The ceremonies will be part of this city's 250th anniversary celebrations and will be in front of the Guardhouse of Market Square Green. In case of rain, General Smith will speak in the reception center.

It will be one of his first major public appearances since his return from Russia. He will be introduced by Dr. H. M. Stryer, mayor of Williamsburg. Winthrop Rockefeller, a director of Williamsburg Restoration, Inc., also will speak during the program.

The Independence Day combination of Colonial and modern military pageantry will be opened at 10:30 a. m. with a parade of units of the National Military Establishment.

At the moment the gates of the Magazine are unlocked, a squadron of jet aircraft, including the sensational new F-86 Sabre, will pass over in an aerial salute and an eighteenth century cannon, surrendered by the British at Yorktown, will be fired by men in Continental uniform.

Pastor Calls Church-Going One of Most Patriotic Acts

Rev. Elson

"One of the most patriotic acts a man can do these days is to be a member of a church in the tradition of emancipated living," the Rev. E. L. R. Elson declared yesterday.

"The truth of the matter is that our kind of democracy can only exist when a substatial proportion of people believe in and act under faith in God as the sovereign Lord of life," the pastor of the National Presbyterian explained.

Preaching on "Freedom under God," Dr. Elson told his congregation that "the signing of the Declaration of Independence was basically a spiritual event.

"Apart from faith in God, American history has no meaning. From the very beginning until yesterday's prayers in Congress, our national life has been undergirded by this faith," he said.

"American democracy as originally conceived is the logical conclusion of the Protestant Reformation. Men who are obedient to God and submissive to His sovereign will are less in need of the laws of man . . . For men under God not only possess a higher sense of moral and ethical discrimination, but are more likely to be morally responsible," he said.

Dr. Elson leaves July 12 for Europe, where he will lead a series of spiritual retreats for American armed forces chaplains in Germany and England.

Correction

A story on the anniversary celebration of restored Williamsburg in The Washington Post yesterday listed the performances of the drama, "The Common Glory," as being presented every day except Sundya.

Actually the performances are given every day except Monday. They will run until September 4. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Scottish Rite Class Named for Father Of Gen. MacArthur

Word was received yesterday from Tokyo by John H. Cowles, sovereign grand commander of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite for the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States, that the thirty-second degree of the Rite had been conferred on a class of more than 200 during ceremonies in the past week in the Japanese capital.

The class, consisting prinipally of military personnel, Cowles was informed, was named in memory of Gen. Arthur MacArthur, father of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

General MacArthur, the Far East military commander, a thirty-third degree Mason, has been largely instrumental in resumption of Masonic activities in Japan. He was host at a reception at his quarters for the teams putting on the degree work.

Firecracker in River Nets 20-Inch Bass

Windham, Me., July 3 (AP).—A 12-year-old boy today caught a 4-pound bass with a 2-inh firecracker.

Bill Ledger of Portland said he tossed a salute into the water, watched it disappear and heard a muffled boom.

Result: One dead bass.

Bill waded into the lake and hauled his prize ashore.

His father found the exploded firecracker stuffed in the mouth of the 20½-inch-long bass.

Drop Routine This Festive 4th, And Make it a Real Holiday

By Ida Jean Kain

IT'S BEEN rumored from time to time that fish are brain food. Fish provide good phosphorus and brain tissue contains phosphorus, so somebody put two and two together . . . but it's just a fish story.

I have a different theory. Fish can be brain food, provided you spend the day outdoors catching them! But it's not the phosphorus, it's the relaxation. Everybody needs to get out and away from work—fish, play golf, sail a boat, swim paddle, go on a picnic, or swing in a hammock right in your own backyard.

This being Independence Day, it would be nice to be free from routine. Too much routine leads to a rut. It's bad to be in a rut, even a pleasant one, for monotony seriously lessens mental efficiency.

Trip Not a Must

THIS Fourth, let's hope you are doing something completely delightful . . . something that brings peace of mind. It doesn't necessarily mean going away; it can be digging in the garden, or picnicking in the backyard. But if you regularly wash dishes three times a day, today use paper plates and cups.

If you're a city dweller who takes to the great outdoors, there are a couple of things to watch out for, poison ivy and sunburn . . . or you'll wish you'd stayed in your rut. If you don't know poison ivy, suspect every three-leafed plant, and don't touch it. The leaves may be notched or plain, shiny or dull, and mixed in with other vines.

If you try to get a golden tan in one sitting, you'll be unhappy too. On first exposure, 15 minutes in the direct rays of the sun between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. is long enough. Keep covered. And beware of misty days—they are the worst burners. At the shore you won't feel the burn for the breeze, but if you get too much sun you'll have a restless night, and tomorrow will be too painful to talk about. While fishing, wear a big sun hat, and a shirt with sleeves . . . and slacks. The sun beats down on the water.

When to Stay Ashore

IF YOU don't know how to swim, stay out of boats. Even if you do swim, don't change seats and rock the boat. Holidays too often wind up in tragedy . . . tragedy that need not happen. Water will buoy you up if you kick your feet a little and don't get panicky. An oar or a paddle under the chin will keep anyone's head out of water. But if there is nothing to hold onto, don't get rattled—let the back of your head rest against the water, paddle with your feet, keep calm and you'll foat.

Wouldn't it be a wonderful Fourth if the papers could carry the banner head . . . NO FATALITIES THIS HOLIDAY.

Knitted Wool Cardigan Handy for Summer

This summer the knitted wool cardigan steps out with prints, linens, cottons and chiffons.

This trusty little garment comes in a variety of lengths and weights. The short cardigan, reaching to the waist is recommended for wear with full-skirted frocks. Hip-length, and ribbed deeply to make the waist slimmer, it is worn with suits and narrow skirts.

Collie Show To Be Held at Falls Church

One of the doggiest events of the summer season will be held this afternoon at Beech Tree Farms, Falls Church, Va. when the Mason Dixon Collie Club will hold a Sanction Match.

There will be classes for puppies from 6 to 9 months of age, for novices 9 to 12 months old—open with points or open without points.

Entries in the American Kennel Club, Plan C, Sanction Match will be accepted from 12 noon until the starting time of 1 o'clock. Trophies and ribbons will be given in each class, and a sterling silver plate for the best in match. Judging will be by Dr. J. P. McCain of Pittsburgh, Pa., who recently judged the Collie Club of America Specialty Show in California which drew the largest entry of one breed of dogs ever assembled anywhere in the world.

The Collie is the most popular breed in the Working Group in this country, and the third most popular in the United States of all 111 breeds of dog.

Collies and their masters will be admitted to the show at 50 cents per head. Collie fanciers are invited with or without dogs.

The Club suggests that it is a good opportunity for dogs inexperienced in shows to get a little experience. Further details about the show can be obtained by calling Falls Church 1607 or Falls Church 0261.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Chore of Getting Up Nights With Firstborn Child Falls to Father, Who Wins No Sympathy Or Help From Wife as His Nerves Grow Ragged

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married for almost two years and was quite happy until recently, but now an almost unbearable situation has arisen. It started about six months ago, when my wife and I were blessed with a baby daughter—a blessing that has proved to be not entirely unmixed.

From the first our child has required a certain amount of nighttime care, a chore that fell to me; and for the last two weeks she has been ill, making it necessary to attend her more often, for longer periods, during the night—and my wife refuses to share this extra burden with me.

Ellen claims that since she cares for the baby during the day, I should do so at night, and while I love my daughter and would do anything for her, I may lose my job if I don't get more sleep. I haven't had more than four hours' sleep any night for the past two weeks and the quality of my work has dropped considerably, drawing acid comments from my employer.

Wife Is Impatient With Man's Appeals

I AM EMPLOYED at exacting work, where a high degree of mental alertness is essential, and when I try to explain this to Ellen, she becomes absolutely unreasoning. She accuses me of trying to shirk my duties as husband and father and the discussions end in tears and recriminations.

My mother has very kindly offered to help with the baby during the day, so that Ellen can take over at night; but Ellen rejects this offer on the ground that the baby is our responsibility and she upbraids me for trying (she says) to shift the burden to others.

Our doctor tells me that the baby will need special care for some weeks to come, so you see I am faced with a very real problem, and I would appreciate your advice on it. R. B.

Wife Doesn't Like the Role of Mother

DEAR R. B.: This is indeed a serious problem; and the way the tide is running now, the baby's chances of survival are in jeopardy.

The inside story is that you were happy in marriage while Ellen was happy in the role of bride; but she hasn't been happy since the baby was born, and, in consequence, she has made you miserable—all because she intensely resents in entirety "the works" of motherhood.

This resentment boils to the surface increasingly, in such rejecting ways as: 1. Evaluating the baby as an almost intolerable "burden," a term which figures largely in her references to child-care. 2. In behaving as if you were wholly, selfishly, heinously "guilty" of creating this uncongenial burden for her, and therefore should be made to suffer for it.

It seems painfully evident that she is capitalizing, unconsciously, on the baby's illness, without recognizing the gist of her performance, to punish you for having sired the "problem,"—as if to say, "This is all your doing, so take your medicine, and how do you like it?"

Pair Are Dueling in Total Confusion

AS I SEE the picture, you have an emotionally sick wife as well as an ailing child; for there is something unnatural, something morbid or subnormal, in Ellen's defiant refusal either to attend the sick child at night or to accept your mother's help which would rest her for that vigil.

The truly maternal woman is irrepressibly solicitous of her firstborn especially, particularly during illness in infancy—as well she may be with all her progeny, for this is the period of highest mortality in children. And in emergency when a sickly child needs special home-care, this breed of mother finds inexhaustible energy for the task.

Baffled by Ellen's neurotic behavior (which indirectly is sapping the baby's health), you are reacting in martyred vein, too, crying to your mother for solace as well as help, and probably compulsively doing badly at work, to prove yourself ill used. This brief space cannot provide the intensive guidance required to save the marriage and succor the child, thus I advise—for both of you—a chastened study of Dr. Alexander Magoun's book "Love and Marriage," published by Harper & Brothers. M. H.

Supper Party Given for Singer and Conductor

Gladys Swarthout, soloist for the first of the National Symphony Watergate concerts this season, and Howard Mitchell, directing the orchestra for the first time as its full conductor, shared honors at an after-concert supper party last evening.

Hosts were Col. Philip G. Strong and Mrs. Strong, member of the board of directors of the National Symphony Association, who entertained in the garden of their Georgetown home.

Gladys Swarthout arrived with her husband, Frank Chapman, immediately following her last song, wearing a charming broderie Anglaise gown with black velvet sash and red roses tucked in at the waist. She wore, too, a favorite jewel, an amethyst pin, which she inherited from the famous singer, Patti, whom she greatly admired.

Mrs. Strong had chosen a print gown, the Chinese red and turquoise figures making an effective combination on a black ground. Blue delphinium, white carnations, pale yellow roses were used in the drawing room and on the buffet table in the garden, with a blue flood light coming to the aid of the mellow light from the moon.

Among the guests coming in after the concert were Mrs. Howard Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hayes (she's Evelyn Swarthout, concert pianist, and Gladys Swarthout's cousin), Capt. and Mrs. Charles Hamilton Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, Col. and Mrs. David S. Barry, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Symington, Mr. and Mrs. Warren S. Ege and Paul Hume with his fiancee, Miss Ruth Fox.

Other were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Lee D. Butler, William Perry, J. Erwin Mutch, manager of the National Symphony Orchestra, and Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Myers.

Virginia Perin To Become Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard K. Perin announce the engagement of their daughter, Virginia, to Edward W. Knowles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elvin E. Knowles of Brockton, Mass.

Miss Perin is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University and the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta and Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Knowles attended the University of Geneva in Switzerland and the University of Massachusetts at Fort Devens. At present he is a student at George Washington University where he is a member of Delta Phi Epsilon. Miss Perin and Mr. Knowles were formerly on the staff of the American Embassy in Paris.

QUATTROCENTO the period that introduced the credenza

Renewed interest in ancient art endowed all furniture of the Italian renaissance (1400-1500) with an architectural outline. It was the era that ushered in classical beauty and simplicity. The credenza of that period was a low sideboard with doors and drawers, serving a strictly utilitarian need. Today it is purposeful as well as decorative. The credenza shown opens into a bar. It is made of richly veneered swirl and crotch mahogany.

About Covers for Doll Carriages

Could you tell me if there's a place in Washington that puts new covers on doll carriages?
A. G.

If by the cover you mean the top, you can have this work done by a firm reached by telephoning GEorgia 6511.

To my horror, some of the new whipped cream in a can was accidently sprayed on a casein painted wall. We have tried applications of cornstarch and pressing with brown paper and a warm iron to no avail. Is there anything short of repainting the entire wall that could remedy this unsightly spot?
K. C. T.

Try mixing carbon tetrachloride with the cornstarch or with Fuller's earth to make a paste and leave it on the spot until it dries, then brush off. If this doesn't clear up the trouble, repainting is probably the only answer. Perhaps you could just retouch this particular area with a little of the paint, if the paint job is fairly new and you still have some of the paint in the house.

My husband is going to be sent soon to Geneva, Switzerland. We have a 4-year-old child and a 6-month-old baby. Can you or one of your readers tell me the type of clothing I should take. Also if I'd be able to buy the baby foods that come in jars. We'd appreciate any helpful hints. We plan to stay at least a year or two. J. A. R.

Can any readers who have lived in Switzerland give J. A. R. some suggestions?

Can you give me some gift suggestions for a golden wedding anniversary? We would like to pay between $10 and $20.
L. T. K.

There are many things that carry out the gold idea that would be appropriate for such a gift. The needs of recipients, of course, have to be considered, but a pretty yellow-and-gold cake plate, a set of table linen in a sunny golden shade, or a good-looking gilt picture frame might be appropriate. A handsome guest book, leather-bound with the names of the couple imprinted with gold on the cover, would make a nice keepsake as those attending the reception could write their names in it.

T. B. W. recently wrote for advice about cookbooks. I should like to suggest a new book, "Cooking for One," by Elinor Parker (Thomas Y. Crowell & Co.) which I believe might be helpful. R. L. C.

I am planning a boat trip to Bermuda early in August. Please advise what type of clothing would be proper. Would a formal be necessary? Would a fox jacket be proper? Mrs. W.

Summer sports clothes would be in order for such a voyage. Days are warm, I understand, nights cool. A lightweight topper would therefore be necessary. I do not think the fox jacket would be very appropriate. A few dressy afternoon frocks would come in handy, and so would an evening or dinner dress.

An excellent variation for plain muffins is to roll the tops in sugar and cinnamon that have been well mixed together as soon as you take them out of the oven.

Catch a Beau With Ribbon

There's a flutter of ribbon in summer fashions—sashes, scarfs, little ribbon ties. Many a dress wears a touch of ribbon as a part of its design. This is the year says the Woman's Home Companion to look through your scrap bag and use the yard or so of ribbon that was always too pretty to throw away.

For a plunging neckline, the fashion editor of the Companion suggests that you line it with a bright, contrasting ribbon and let strawberries or other artificial berries dangle from the length of ribbon. An off-the-shoulder frock will take on new sophistication if you fasten a bright choker of ribbon around your throat. You can make it by securing two different colored ribbons together so that you have the edge of one color showing above the other. Add a tiny nosegay to one side and you have a charming summer necklace.

Speaking of nosegays, try freshening a dull cotton frock this way. Take one bunch of artificial flowers—you can get them at the dime store—and back it with a bow of contrasting ribbon. Fasten it at your waist. It gives a this-year's look to last year's dress.

Finish Furniture, Boost the Budget

If you are furnishing your home on a budget try buying new unfinished furniture and painting it. It will take time but the results will give you a truly creative thrill. Gay colors like pistachio green, shocking pink or turquoise are fun to experiment with. The Woman's Home Companion passes along these practical hints for painting unfinished furniture. Nicks and other imperfections will show less they say if you stain-tint the furniture first. Then when you paint it with the color plan on applying a minimum of three coats—however five are better. Be sure to let each coat of stain and paint dry thoroughly before adding the next.

Survey for Better Cooking Utensils

Some of the little things that count in making everyday cooking utensils more satisfactory to the women who use them are reported by the Rhode Island Experiment Station as a result of interviews with representative farm homemakers of this State.

All handles should be firmly attached so that they cannot loosen or turn, these women believe. Ten per cent of the women preferred composition handles.

Easy-to-see colored markings on all glass measuring containers were suggested by 43 per cent of the homemakers.

Deeper spouts on all utensils designed for pouring were suggested by 17 per cent.

Mixing bowls with straighter sides were wanted by 30 per cent.

Dish drainers with wires closer together—to prevent silverware and other small utensils from falling through—got the vote of 60 per cent. Twenty-three per cent suggested another improvement in dish drainers. They wanted the plate support raised to prevent plates from touching the sink underneath and the racks slanted more to hold plates more safely.

Many of the women also suggested shorter and more comfortable handles for mixing spoons and wooden spoons.

Robertson Doubts Lewis Plan Is Legal

By The Associated Press

Senator Robertson (D., Va.) yesterday questioned the legality of John L. Lewis' order putting most of the Nation's coal miners on a three-day work week. He said a Senate inquiry will take a look at it.

"I can't believe that Congress, in exempting unions from the anti-trust laws, ever intended to confer on any union the right to control production and thereby to control prices," Robertson said.

The Virginian added that the matter "is bound to come up" at a Senate Banking Committee investigation of various phases of the coal industry's operations. The committee plans to start the inquiry late this month or early in August.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, has instructed all soft coal diggers except those working Western mines to go on a three-day week starting Tuesday when the miners' annual vacation ends.

Stab Victim Dies; Friend Confesses

Nathaniel Nuttingham, about 30, a Federal Works Agency guard of 1620 4th st. nw., died of a stab wound in the stomach early yesterday.

Under arrest and held for an 11:30 coroner's inquest Tuesday was a friend, William C. Jones, 49. Detective Sergt. Lawrence Hartnett said Jones confessed to stabbing Nuttingham at 4th and P sts., late Saturday night.

Police found Nuttingham lying in the street at 11:15 p. m. He died in Freedman's Hospital 4½ hours later.

Woman Injures Foot In Fall Leaving Boat

Mrs. Mary R. Osborne, 33, of 738 Congress st. se., employed in the advertising department of The Washington Post, suffered a possible farcture of the left foot when she slipped and fell on leaving a pleasure boat at Riverview, Md., yesterday.

She was admitted to Providence Hospital.

Mrs. McDevitt Ahead for 'Mayor' Of Silver Spring

Mrs. Betty Ruth McDevitt, correspondent for The Washington Post and Maryland news columnist, is leading the field in the race for the mythical office of mayor of Silver Spring.

Mrs. McDevitt, who has had an active part in civic affairs in the community for many years, had garnered 75 of the 623 votes cast in the past two weeks. Charles Buscher, manager of the Montgomery County Liquor Control Board, is runner-up with 44 votes and Fred L. Lutes, president of the Suburban National Bank, is a close third with 42 votes.

Anyone can vote but the candidates must live within the boundaries of Silver Spring. The "election" is part of the promotion for annual Silver Spring Week when the local merchants go all out with bargains and sales.

Yugoslav Zone In Trieste Loses Economic Identity

London, July 3 (AP).—Yugoslavia today said "gross violations" of the Italian peace treaty by Italy, the United States and Britain had forced her to incorporate her occupation area of the Trieste Free Territory into the Yugoslav economy.

The Yugoslav government, through its news agency Tanjug, said Premier Tito's regime had made a loan to the Yugoslav military government in Trieste July 1. The loan was reported in a letter to United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie, the statement said.

The letter said trade between the Yugoslav and Anglo-American occupation zones of Trieste had been so hampered that the Yugolira, which Yugoslavia had introduced as occupation money for its zone, "could not meet the rising requirements of economic life."

It was reported in Trieste the Yugoslav occupation zone had asked the Belgrade government for a loan of 500 million dinars (10 million dollars).

'Captive Boy' Forgives Mother

GERALD SULLIVAN, pictured as he left court in Boston Saturday, has forgiven his mother for locking him in a tiny room most of his life, her attorney said yesterday. The 14-year-old boy kissed his mother, Mrs. Anna F. Sullivan, when they were reunited at the lawyer's home, he said

Drug Helping Woman to Kill Gaming Urge

Long Beach, Calif., July 3 (U.P.).—Plump, motherly Mrs. Sula Belle Stimson, 49, went about her household chores today happy in the knowledge a relatively new drug is curing her of a gambling fever.

"I feel so much better than I did before my troubles started," Mrs. Stimson said. "I'm like my old self, and I know my husband and children are happy because those treatments helped me."

Mrs. Stimson still is receiving injections of glutamic acid. Superior Judge Fred Miller gave Mrs. Stimson the choice of taking the treatments or going to jail on a charge of writing bad checks to cover gambling debts.

Mrs. Stimson's family said she had shown no desire to gamble since her release from county jail, where she spent nearly a month receiving the glutamic acid injections. Dr. Marcus Crahan, jail physician, reported the treatments "40 per cent successful."

Dr. Crahan said glutamic acid carries an increased supply of oxygen to the brain and tends to improve behavior patterns where a person suddenly is overcome with a desire to do things previously foreign to him.

Maryland Police Probe Airplane Deserted Nearby

Maryland State Police at Frederick, Md., yesterday were checking on a vagrant airplane which was set down at Braddock, Md., and apparently abandoned.

The pilot of the plane apparently was forced to land through fuel shortage. The right wing of the Piper Cub was damaged when it was set down. The plane landed about 8:30 p. m. Saturday night. The pilot apparently had lacerations, police said, but a check of doctors and hospitals failed to reveal him.

Police said they believe he probably lives in Baltimore and had gone home to arrange for repairs to the plane. The license number on the plane is NO7413-H.

Resort Retains Sign Barring Non-Christians

Middlefield, Conn., July 3 (AP).—The community of Lake Beseck last night voted, 68 to 17, to keep in place its large sign—"For Christians Only." An official said the total represents about two thirds of the eligible voters.

Erected in 1930, the sign has brought more and more outside criticism to this summer colony near Middletown.

The sign frequently has been marked up and defaced, but a short time ago residents repainted it a bright yellow and black.

When some of the lake shore residents recently asked that the sign be taken down, it was decided to take a vote.

President Clifford Hamilton called all the members of the community of Lake Beseck, Inc., to the group's clubhouse last night.

One of those who asked for removal of the sign suggested that it least it be repainted to read—"For Gentiles Only."

"Use of the word Christian in that way," he said, "is a slur on the founder of Christianity."

Maryland Bar Hears Short's Economy Plea

Atlantic City, July 3 (AP).—The Maryland State Bar Association ended its fifty-fourth annual convention here today after hearing Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.) plead for economy "if we want to retain our freedom and to keep our American form of government."

New president of the association is Frank B. Ober of Baltimore, author of Maryland's new subversive activities law. He was elected Saturday.

In pleading for economy, Representative Short warned that "no government can continue to spend more money than it takes in without getting into serious difficulty."

Short, the ranking Republican member of the House Armed Services Committee, also said that expenditures in two wars, care of former allies and enemies, and "voting this year more than we did last for European recovery, try men's souls."

A demand on the Federal Government to eliminate taxes on amusement, luxuries and utilities, was made by Maryland's Governor Lane at the concluding session.

Blind VA Aide To Get Medal From VFW Unit

Ira W. Riggles, Veterans Administration training officer for blinded veterans in the District area, will receive the Veterans of Foreign Wars' Citizenship Medal in ceremonies at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Riggles

Robert F. Sutphin, District of Columbia department commander of the VFW, will make the presentation, which is given annually for outstanding service to the community. The presentation will be in Room 927 of the VA Regional Office, 1825 H st. nw.

Riggles, blind himself for more than 12 years, after a childhood bout with scarlet fever, has helped readjust blinded victims of both World Wars. He lives at 5425 Connecticut ave. nw.

U. S. Nabs 135 Counterfeiters, Expects More

By the United Press

The Government nabbed 135 counterfeiters last year and expects to arrest a lot more than that in 1949, Secret Service agents said yesterday.

They reported that manufacturers of phoney money are on the increase again after "sitting out" the war when the equipment needed to turn out bogus currency was hard to get.

Still another reason for the upsurge, they said, is the fact that it was more profitable to work in a war plant than to take the easy road of crime.

Last year some $513,961 in bogus money was seized, representing at least a $200,000 loss to merchants and other victims.

Counterfeiting of United States money abroad has been, and still is, a lively business because of the black market in United States currency.

Youth, Girl He Shielded From Gunman Are Wed

Los Angeles, July 3 (AP).—A seriously wounded youth and the 16-year-old bride he protected from a holdup man by killing him with the latter's gun were married today in General Hospital.

The youth is Alwyn (Sonny) Ivers, 19. The bride was the former Betty Bowen of Los Angeles.

They had planned to be wed today before the holdup Friday night.

Teachers' Freedom to Teach At Crossroads, Report Hints

Boston, July 3 (AP).—Americans must now face squarely the question of what school teachers can "dare" to talk about.

The teachers say that in a report given today 3000 delegates of the 825,000-member National Education Association, opening its week-long eighty-seventh annual convention.

The report was prepared under direction of Martin W. Essex, superintendent of schools in Lakewood, Ohio.

Essex said it is now generally recognized that teachers should be allowed to present "the relative merits of various social ideologies."

And he adds:

"But does any teacher dare to discuss these current controversial issues when he may be branded as disloyal and dismissed from his position? This question must be faced by the public as well as by the teaching profession."

The report says that the first teacher's oath law was enacted in 1863. Today there are loyalty requirements for teachers in 25 States and in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

Commissioners' Report to Oppose Flight Training

District Commissioners are preparing an adverse report on a House of Representatives bill authorizing the Board of Education to offer flight training to high school students.

The Board of Education previously opposed such legislation.

The bill, HR 4482, was introduced by Representative Beall (R., Md.) May 3 and was referred to the House District Committee.

District schools already offer ground courses in aviation, but are not permitted to give flight training.

What's the Verdict?

FIRECRACKER

Q. One of the features of a Fourth of July fair was a tent with various stands for selling soft drinks, hot dogs, etc. Abel, a smart alec youth, tosse da lighted firecracker into the crowded tent. It landed on Bent's stand. Bent picked it up and tossed it wildly. It exploded in flight, blinding one eye of Davis. Davis sues Abel for trespass to the person. Abel denies liability, saying that Davis ought to sue one of the others if he's going to sue anybody.

A. Two hundred years ago in a case very like this, it was decided that the injured man has a case in trespass against the first man who threw the firecracker, and that he does not have to sue the intervening throwers. "It is like the case of a mad ox turned loose in a crowd. The person who turns him loose is answerable in trespass for whatever mischief he may do." One of the judges said: I think the defendant (A) may be considered in the same view as if he himself had personally thrown the squib in the plaintiff's (D's) face. The terror impressed upon (B) and (C) excited self-defense, and deprived them of the power of recollection. What they did was therefore the inevitable consequence of (A's) unlawful act,"—F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

34 to Seek Alexandria Vote for Battle

Thirty-four Alexandria men have been named to the Alexandria steering committee to direct the Alexandria section of John S. Battle's campaign for the Democratic nomination for Virginia Governor.

O. Ashby Reardon, chairman of the Alexandria Battle-for-Governor campaign organization, also named 10 Alexandrians to serve as chairmen or cochairmen in the city's six political wards.

The organization is planning a series of rallies this month, Reardon said, and a lawn party Friday at which Fulmer Bright, former Mayor of Richmond, will be the principal speaker.

Steering committee appointments announced by Reardon include:

Rep. Howard W. Smith, State Sen. Andrew W. Clarke, State Delegate Armistead L. Boothe, Mayor William T. Wilkins, Elliott F. Hoffman, James M. Duncan, Jr., George H. Evans, Charles L. Nash, Albert A. Smoot, W. K. Coakley, Eugene Simpson, Joseph W. Phillips, Gilbert J. Cox, Clarence L. Simpson.

No Holiday In Offing for Political Foes

Independence Day will be no holiday from campaigning for Virginia's four Democratic candidates for Governor.

They will attend various celebrations and rallies today where, traditionally, speeches are the order of the day.

Only the Republican candidate for the governorship, Walter Johnson, has no Fourth of July engagements, but he is slated for several radio addresses during the week.

Horace A. Edwards will attend a Richmond celebration at Hotchkiss Field in his own bailiwick. Francis Pickens Miller will appear at Chesterfield County's 200th anniversary picnic at the courthouse.

Remmie L. Arnold will spend the day with the Louisa volunteer fire company, while Senator John S. Battle attends a rally of his forces in Rockymount, Franklin County.

The itinerary of the Democratic candidates for the remainder of this week includes:

Miller at Charlotte Courthouse Tuesday, Arnold in Cape Charles Tuesday, Arnold, Edwards and Battle at Richmond and Miller at Lunenberg and Brunswick Counties Wednesday; Arnold in the Ninth Congressional District Thursday, Friday and Saturday; Battle in West Point, Williamsburg and Henrico County Thursday; Miller in Portsmouth Thursday, and Edwards at opening of his Eighth District headquarters on Thursday; Battle in Rockingham County Friday and at Harrisonburg Saturday; Miller in Cape Charles Friday and in Accomack County Saturday.

Amvet Official Hits Plan to End Poll Tax

A proposed Virginia constitutional amendment to eliminate the State's poll tax was assailed as "unjust" yesterday by an official of the State department of the American Veterans of World War II.

P. T. Howard, adjutant of the Virginia group, said the Amvets had gone on record as opposing the proposal because of "certain iniquitious features which make removal of the poll tax more unjust than the tax itself."

He said the action was taken reluctantly, since the group opposes the poll tax in principle.

The amendment, Howard said, would replace the poll tax with a restrictive registration eligibility clause "strongly resembling legislation adopted in other Southern States to bar, directly or indirectly, the Negro race from exercising the right to vote."

The provision found objectionable by the Amvets, Howard said, would require voters to "meet such tests as to literacy and such further requirements as the General Assembly may provide."

"Such a broad grant of unrestricted authority," he said, "would allow the General Assembly to impose any and all new restrictions on eligibility that it may choose."

The Amvets not only have opposed the proposed amendment, it was pointed out, but have petitioned the General Assemblies of 1950 and 1952 to prepare new amendments which would be "fair and reasonable" and would still eliminate the poll tax as a prerequisite to the right to vote.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

To assure receiving this help from your ad writer, please try to call during the morning or early afternoon.

The Lyons Den By Leonard Lyons

FOR the past few days the newspapers have been publicizing John Golden's seventy-fifth birthday, the designation of a "John Golden Lane" in Bayside, Long Island, and the proclamation of a John Golden Day by the borough president of Queens. Ruth Gordon visited the producer at his office, watched him write a song, make a series of calls about an imminent production, rush through correspondence, etc., and told him: "John, I don't believe you're 75. It's just a publicity stunt" . . . The producer lunched at Sardi's yesterday and told of his early days in New York when he sold $2 jingles to Puck Magazine. And he told of R. F. Outcault, whom he first met at Puck, and whose "Yellow Kid" was the first comic strip in America.

Golden

The comic strip was first called "Hogan's Alley." Pulitzer hired Outcault to do the strip for the New York World. A World employe, whose job it was to color the black-and-white cartoons, splashed yellow over the nightgown worn by a toothless child in the strip. When Outcault left to work for Hearst, Pulizer claimed ownership of "Hogan's Alley," and his claim was sustained. Hearst didn't mind, for he called Outcault's new strip, about the toothless child, "The Yellow Kid" . . . And for the next few years Pulitzer hired an artist to make unsigned sketches of the "Hogan's Alley" characters exactly as Outcault had done it. Golden and other friends of Outcault stopped talking to the artist because he was counterfeiting another's work.

Thirty years later, said Golden yesterday, the artist came to his office. He never had forgotten the contempt of his colleagues. "So you think you've become a big, important man," he said to Golden. "Well, you're not the only one. Look at this: I got it for painting the Empress of China." He showed the producer a check for $10,000 . . . He really had painted the Empress of China, and the check was genuine. For he was George B. Luks, whose work soon would be in museums and recognized as one of America's ablest artists. "And so if anybody has one of the unsigned 'Hogan's Alley cartoons from the old World," said Golden yesterday, "he has a genuine painting by Luks."

Bill Gold is on his vacation and will resume "The District Line" July 18.

ALTHOUGH Bernard Baruch, who sailed for Europe three days ago, said he had no visa for Russia, he was invited to come by Stalin . . . Jim Rowe, jr., the former White House assistant and assistant to the Attorney General, has become a member of Tommy Corcoran's law firm in Washington. . . . "Dance News, "the monthly magazine devoted exclusively to items of interest to dancers, printed this filler-note: "Tap-Dancer and Movie Actress Rita Hayworth married to Aly Kahn, son of Balletomaine Aga Khan" . . . Mrs. Herbert Lehman has become a painter. She'll spend the summer with her paint and canvas at Lake Placid.

HENRY SHEREK, the London producer, was discussing first-nights, and told of a show in which David Morris, the British comedian, appeared. It was his first important role. When he arrived at the theater, that opening night, he was stopped at the backstage entrance by some youngsters who asked for his autograph. "No. I'm not a star yet," Morris told them, entered the doorway, then turned and said: "But wait—until I come out."

BILLY GRADY of MGM, whose photo appears in the current Saturday Evening Post series on W. C. Fields, was a booking agent before he went to Hollywood. He once bought the movie rights to a play, "Penny Arcade," for $15,000. A few days later he sold the rights to Warner Bros. for $17,500, on condition that two of his young clients get roles in the picture. The studio reluctantly agreed, and signed the two, Joan Blondell and James Cagney.

MARSHALL NIELAN, the veteran movie director, tells of the first play he ever wrote and of his seeing his mother after the premiere. "Where are you going?" he asked her, and she said: "To the cemetery—to turn your father back on his back." . . . Fred Allen describes his summer cottage at Old Orchard, Maine, as a beaverboard shack. "A burglar doesn't need to pick the lock to get in," says Allen. "All he needs is a razor-blade." . . . Robert Andrews, author of "If I Had a Million" and the new novel, "Legend of a Lady," worked as a newspaperman in Chicago. When Paramount paid him $10,000 for "If I Had a Million," he asked his editor's advice on investing it. And on their advice he invested all of it in Sam Insull's Mid-West Utilities, which crashed.

JUSTICE WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS made a speech last week before the Institute of Technology in Israel. He delivered it in English, but ended it with three sentences in Hebrew, whose translation is "Strength to Israel. Freedom to all men. Peace to the world" . . . Sid Caesar, who became one of Television's brightest stars last season, has had his Palmer House salary doubled for an extra week in the Empire Room . . .

Long's Crowd Stages Comeback

By Drew Pearson

It has been exactly 10 years since this column exposed the Louisiana scandals, resulting in the imprisonment of Gov. Richard Leche and various members of the old Huey Long gang.

Russell Long

Today, the Long family and friends have staged an amazing comeback. Huey's brother, Earl, is Governor of the State. Huey's son, Russell, is United States Senator from Louisiana. So the other day I went back to Louisiana—just 10 years after writing the first column on the Louisiana scandals—to see how the rebuilt Long machine is handling its comeback.

Things have changed a lot in 10 years. The Governor's mansion atmosphere is calmer, less spectacular, more serious.

Earl Long is giving the State such an even-keel administration it's almost humdrum. New Orleans, under Mayor de Lesseps Morrison, is still rowing with the Long machine, but it lacks the melodrama and bellicose pyrotechnics of Huey's day.

Seymour Weiss, former Democratic National Committeeman, who went to jail for income tax evasion, is now back running the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans and going out of his way to be a patriotic citizen.

Leche Raises Flowers

Governor Leche, who got 10 years for taking bribes, is raising flowers on his farm near Covington, and tourists pay 75 cents to visit it.

Dr. J. Monroe Smith, former president of Louisiana State University, who got 30 years for embezzling university funds, is dead. But before he died he was given a chance, as rehabilitation officer at the State penetentiary at Angola, to help others who had suffered his misfortune.

George Caldwell, who went to jail for stealing WPA materials and padding WPA payrolls, is now the leading building contractor in Baton Rouge. Abe Shushan, who built the New Orleans airport, is back in the business of being an honest man.

Huey Was Honest

It was always my belief that Huey Long—and I knew him well—was honest. He soaked the big oil companies, taxed the utilities and squeezed campaign contributions out of all sorts of people. But the money went back into free schoolbooks, better roads and bridges.

Huey's brother Earl is a quiet, easy-going farmer, just the opposite of his brother's high-strung, ripsnorting bundle of nerves which once made Louisiana the most-spotlighted State in the Union.

Earl also has followed a soak-the-rich policy, heavily taxed the oil companies, put through free lunches for all school children, and increased Negro schoolteachers' pay from $70 to $200 a month if they have a B. A. degree.

"The only way to have compulsory education is with free books and free lunches," says Governor Long, who has no children of his own. "Kids can't study when they're hungry, and an awful lot of kids down our way just don't get enough to eat."

"The oil companies hated Huey," he says. "He taxed 'em and they hated him. I have taxed them, too, but they have taken it out more on Russell than on me."

Of his nephew Russell, now United States Senator from Louisiana, he said, "Every mistake I make Russell gets blamed for. Russell's going to make a good Senator. He has all of Huey's good points and none of his bad."

"Huey wanted money for power," explained Earl. "He never wanted it for himself. As for me, I don't need money because I don't care about power, and I'm retiring from this job when my term is up."

Chinese Drugs Yield Potent Germ Enemies

Potent brews mixed up by Chinese medicine men are not all useless—8 of 45 already laboratory-tested have yielded antibacterial substances.

Scientific survey of Chinese drugs, compounded of roots, stems, seeds, leaves and flowers, and its preliminary findings were reported in the current issue of Science, weekly publication of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Investigators were H. Zanyin Gaw and H. P. Wang, who carried out their special studies at the Biological Laboratory, National Wuhan University, Wuchang, Hupeh, China. Dr. Wang is now associated with the Department of Zoology, Mt. Holyoke College, in South Hadley, Mass.

Six of the 45 drugs already tested, they reported, showed varying degrees of antibacterial activity for pus-forming organisms, while two others were found active against infections of the urinary tract. The substances, they said, arrested further growth of the organisms much like today's new antibiotics.

Their survey of the Chinese drugs, they recounted, was begun on the basis of recent scientific studies in the production of antibiotic substances in plants. After recovery of the antibacterial substances in the drugs, they tested each for possible toxic effects on animals.

No harmful effects were uncovered, they reported, adding that this could be expected since "such prepared medicine is always administered orally in the practice of Chinese medicine."
